CHURCHILL MEETS STALIN IN MOSCOW

GERMAN DRIVE IN DON BEND AREA RENEWED

Nazi Press on Toward Stalingrad: Red Retreat in Caucasus Continues.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Aug 17—The German offensive in the Don bend [illegible] in full force today in a [illegible] new drive toward Stalingrad while in the Caucasus the Russians fell back from the ruins of Maikop oil fields toward [illegible] petroleum producing [illegible] Grozny.

[illegible] communique report[illegible] the toll of new Nazi [illegible] and material thrown [illegible] assault southeast of Kletskaya and northeast of Kotelnikovski against the flanks of the [illegible] guarding Stalingrad.

Battlefront dispatches said the Germans rolled forward at tremendous cost in the Kletskaya area 75 miles northwest of Stalingrad, but were held firmly at the Kotelnikovski flank, 95 miles southwest of Stalingrad.

Stretch Along Rail Line

In the Caucasus, extending axis lines appeared checked on the Krasnodar flank where the Germans are thrusting toward the port of Novorossisk, but they stretched ever farther to the southeast along the rail and oil pipe line toward Grozny and the Caspian.

In acknowledging the loss of Maikop, they said that the valuable oil installations of that area which produced seven per cent of Russia's petroleum had been blasted to worthlessness.

The Russians had time to destroy the oil installations at Maikop and an official announcement that oil supplies had been removed and "oil establishments themselves made completely unuseable" was taken here to mean that a thorough job of destruction had been performed. (The Germans claimed the capture of Maikop Aug 9).

At Krasnodar, north of Maikop and 60 miles northeast of the Black sea naval base of Novorossisk, the Russians reported they repulsed heavy German attacks.

The Red army's most critical front seemed to be that in the Don bend northwest of Stalingrad especially in the Kletskaya sector where the Germans were [illegible] pressure to reach the important industrial and strategic center of Stalingrad on the Volga.

Marion Youth Is Elected Head of DeMolay in Ohio

HAROLD FRALICH

Harold Fralich New Master Councilor; Riley Hall Also State Officer.

Delegates to the 18th annual Ohio State DeMolay conclave chose a Marion DeMolay member, Harold Fralich of 387 Blaine avenue, as state master councilor for the coming year, at their business session Sunday noon. Another member of Marion Chapter No 288, F. Riley Hall of 499 North State street, was named state treasurer. Hall was general chairman for the state meeting which opened Saturday and closed last night with a banquet at Hotel Harding.

Other officers chosen were Earl Cummins of Thomas Jones chapter, Cleveland, state senior councilor, Max Labermeier of Oola Kahn chapter, Cincinnati, state junior councilor and Merlin Meredith of Heights chapter, Cleveland, state scribe.

The place for holding the 1943 convention was left in the hands of the executive committee. If the war continues the wartime program of holding a convention for two days only and limiting the attendance to delegates and officers will be observed. Approximately 150 attended the two-day session which opened with a banquet at the Masonic temple Saturday noon.

Public Installation

A public installation, in charge of the Past Masters of Marion chapter headed by Pvt. John Craner as the installing officer, was conducted at 4 p. m. yesterday. At that time Pvt. Craner received the degree of chevalier conferred by Jesse W. "Dad" Darling of Cincinnati, active member of the state council. The honor is conferred upon the recommendation of the advisory council and the active member of grand council, and is awarded only by the grand council.

During the session Sally Solinger, 14-month-old daughter of Robert Solinger, district deputy and council advisor, and Mrs. Solinger of 242 Spencer street, was named the permanent Sweetheart of the state Order of DeMolay, and was crowned with a wreath of roses by James W. Batey of East Liverpool, retiring state master.

At the banquet last night Mr. Batey, retiring master councilor, was presented a gold watch engraved with the DeMolay emblem and the name of the state organization. Talks by Mr. Darling, Mr. Fralich, Mr. Batey and E. Robert Chable of Cleveland, district deputy, were broadcast over Station WMRN.

Pilgrimage to Memorial

Because of the rain yesterday morning only a small group of officers and members made the pilgrimage to the tomb of President Harding where "Dad" Darling paid tribute to Mr. Harding and a wreath was placed on his grave. Mr. Darling told of Mr. Harding's Masonic connections and quoted the following statement made by him at the White House which he described as "so fitting to the present:" "Unless somehow or other this nation and the world can find their way to God in a new and larger sense, I shudder to think what the future may be. I believe with all my soul that the most immediate and imperative duty in a tumultuous day like this is the reconsecration of humanity to Almighty God." Later the group visited the Harding home.

A conclave ball Saturday night at the temple was a social highlight of the two-day meeting. Approximately 100 couples attended.

Mt. Gilead Man Hero In Plane Crash Fatal to 17

Sgt. Robert Lee Rescues the Only Other Two Survivors Despite Own Serious Burns.

A former Mt. Gilead man, Sergeant Robert Lee 23, is one of three survivors of a large army transport plane which carried 17 men to flaming death Saturday night when it crashed on isolated 2,200-foot Garnet Peak on Peru mountain, located in one of the most inaccessible spots in the Berkshires in Massachusetts, according to an Associated Press dispatch. He was hailed as a hero in news dispatches for recruiting two companions despite his own serious injuries. The plane was on a routine mission out of Pope Field, Fort Bragg, N. C. The three were given a better chance to recover, reports said today.

Sergeant Lee is the son of Mrs. Hazel G. Lee of Columbus, formerly of Mt. Gilead. He was graduated from the Mt. Gilead High school and left a machine shop at that place to enter the army in 1940. He was made a sergeant a year later.

The Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor cut short a furlough he was spending with his mother last December. He visited her again in June. The family moved to Columbus from Mt. Gilead about a month ago. Lee has a brother, Eugene Lee, living at Prospect, and another brother Gerald, with his mother in Columbus.

Praised As Hero

Lee, described in the dispatch as "a heroic sergeant," dragged his two companions to safety from the flaming plane following the crash, which with the exception of mishaps to lighter-than-air craft, was one of the worst tragedies in the history of United States military aviation.

Shearing off the tops of trees for a distance of about 100 yards before it crashed onto a level area atop the peak, the plane immediately burst into flames, the public relations officer at Westover Field said.

Sergt. Lee, his own clothes completely burned from his body—made two trips from the flaming wreckage, dragging four fellow passengers to what he thought was safety.

First, he carried out Pvt. James Fern of Abington, Va., and Pvt. Alonzo Peason of Windsor, Pa., who were given a good chance for recovery at Mercy hospital, Pittsfield. Then he carried out two others only to find that they already were dead.

Signaling for help by firing three shots from his revolver, Sergt. Lee walked dazedly three-quarters of a mile through dense underbrush to the nearest roadway, and directed state police back to the scene of the wreck. He was taken later to St. Luke's hospital in Pittsfield, Mass., where he was given a "50-50" chance for recovery.

Start Inquiry

The army said that an investigation of the crash, which occurred at 9:30 p. m., already was under way, and that a crew from Westover Field was at work recovering the bodies, some of which already had been brought out.

Peru's civilian defense aircraft observation unit first sighted the big craft as it plunged down among the pine trees, 16 miles east of Pittsfield, and notified state police. Then, by firing shotguns in answer to shots from Sergt. Lee's gun, they closed in on the survivor and finally found him.

Except for the loss of the airship Akron on April 4, 1933, in which 73 men died, Saturday night's crash was one of the worst in the history of United States military aviation, either army or navy.

Among Big Disasters

Other major disasters included the crash of an airliner at Premier, W. Va., in which 21 soldiers were killed July 1, the loss of a navy blimp off New Jersey on June 9 1942, in which 12 men were killed, the crash of an army plane near Denver Aug 23, 1940, in which nine men died, and the destruction of a naval transport

FACES MARION BIGAMY CHARGE

Man Arrested in Cleveland on Complaint of Wife No. 2, Living Here.

Forest Woodrow Reed, until recently a Marion resident, was returned here yesterday from Cleveland to face a bigamy charge filed in municipal court by Mrs Winole Reed of Fies avenue.

He was taken into custody early last week when Mrs. Reed visited Cleveland and encountered a woman who posed as Reed's wife, officers reported. Marion's Mrs. Reed returned here to file charges, alleging that Reed, who married her Nov. 4, 1934, was previously wed.

Authorities, delving into the case, heard Mrs. Reed of Marion assert her husband was married and resided in the south before they exchanged vows. The first wife, she related, is supposedly an inmate of a mental institution in Georgia.

The 35-year-old Reed left Marion several months ago and was employed at a Cleveland dairy at the time of his arrest. He was residing with but not married to a Cleveland woman when his Marion wife appeared on the scene, she told authorities.

Reed recently was placed in Class 1-A by a Hardin county draft board after his Marion wife indicated she has not been his dependent, as his questionnaire stated, she reported. The bigamy charge may not be pressed if Reed answers the board's summons for military service, it was intimated by Ralph E. Carhart, attorney for Mrs. Reed.

2 MARION SOLDIERS GET COMMISSIONS

Busby Sweney, Fred Thacker Air Corps Officers.

Two Marion men have received commissions as second lieutenants in the army air force and are ready for active duty.

Aviation Cadet Busby W. Sweney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sweney of 627 Pearl street has received his commission and the wings of an aerial bombardier from the air force advanced flying school at Albuquerque, N. M. Lt. Sweney arrived home Sunday night and will spend a few days with his parents before reporting for duty somewhere on the east coast. He enlisted in the air corps Dec. 12, 1941, at Columbus and was sent to King City, Calif., where he remained until March. From there he was transferred to Santa Ana air base, Calif., where he received his first training as a bombardier before going to Albuquerque for advance training. Lt. Sweney was graduated from Harding High school in 1938 and is a member of Marion Lodge No. 32, B. P. O. Elks and the Marion Chapter No. 288, Order of DeMolay. Before enlisting, he was employed at the Marion Steam Shovel Co.

Sgt. Fred W. Thacker, son of Mrs. Nancy A. Thacker of 240 East Church street, received his lieutenant's commission Aug. 5 after completing a three months' course in the air force officer candidate school at Miami Beach, Fla. Lt. Thacker arrived in Marion Aug. 7 and visited with his mother until Aug. 11 when he left for a replacement field in Salt Lake City, Utah, where he will remain a short time. He enlisted in the air corps Jan. 29, 1941, and was an instructor of blind instrument flying at Luke Field near Phoenix, Ariz., for six months. Before his enlistment in the army Lt. Thacker was assistant manager of the Palace [illegible]

R. C. ISALY WINS COUNTRY CLUB TITLE

Defeats J. B. Bray 1 Up in 36 Hole Golf Tourney.

R. C. "Dick" Isaly defeated J. B. Bray 1-up in a 36-hole match for the Marion Country club mens's championship yesterday at the course on Route 4, south of Marion.

Isaly trailed Bray by one stroke at the end of the first morning nine, Isaly shooting a three-over par 40 while Bray led with a 39. Bray maintained his one point advantage over the second nine as both players had 41's. Isaly made his bid for the title in the third round with a 39, while Bray was going around in 41. At the start of the final nine both players had par fours, but Isaly stretched his lead to two strokes on the 9th with a par 4 while Bray had a bogey 5. Both were one over par on the 30th, but Bray erased Isaly's lead on the next two holes, shooting a par 5 on the 31st and a birdie 4 on the 32nd. On the same holes Isaly had a bogey 6 and a par 5. Both were down in 4 on the

Airmen Prevent Enemy from Landing Reinforcements in Island Battle.

By The Associated Press

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, AUSTRALIA, Aug 17—General Douglas MacArthur's airmen maintained ceaseless vigil over the waters northeast of Australia to prevent Japanese reinforcements from reaching the Solomon islands as the battle for control of vital bases there entered its 11th day today.

While United States marines were believed to be extending bridgeheads already won in the Solomons, actual developments were hidden by official silence both here and in Washington.

No reference to the situation was contained in the daily communique from MacArthur's headquarters, which was devoted to a brief report of a new allied bombing attack on Jap-occupied Timor and to continued patrol skirmishes in the Kokoda area of southeastern New Guinea, 60 miles from Port Moresby.

There was evidence, however, of quiet confidence in Australian circles, whose attitude was reflected by William H. Hughes, a member of the Pacific war council, in a speech at Sydney yesterday in which he acclaimed the Solomon islands offensive as "a revelation of the strength of our ally, America."

"It has been shown," he said, "that man for man the Japanese are not equal to the United States marines."

The Jap radio continued to broadcast sweeping claims of victory in the Solomons, but admitted "the battle is continuing between our forces and American marines who have succeeded in landing."

Newsman Reports U. S. Success in Solomons

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug 17 — Selwyn Speight, the London Star's correspondent in Sydney, Australia, said today that despite the cautious tone of United Nations' communiques "it seems clear the allies have already won in land, sea and air operations in the Solomons the greatest victory yet achieved against the Japanese."

Attributing Washington reluctance to give details on the Solomons actions to security reasons, Speight said it was "reasonable to assume" that the U S marines have achieved their major initial objectives.

"This has apparently been done by seizing control of Tulagi harbor and of the big air base on Guadalcanal island which was nearly ready for use by the Japanese when it was taken" he said.

"When American and Australian fighting planes are able to operate from that field in substantial numbers the Japanese will have lost all chance of driving them from the island, he asserted.

"That stage may be very near," he added.

Patrol Launches 40-Mile Speed Limit Campaign

Enforcement of a 40-mile speed limit on Ohio's highways, with the penalty of no new or recapped tires for offenders, was begun over the week-end by state patrolmen.

Twelve motorists were halted by patrolmen from the Marion sub-station. Drivers were warned that they had exceeded the 40-mile limit and that their names will be forwarded to the state rationing board in Columbus, patrolmen reported.

The campaign to reduce the speed of highway traffic for the purpose of prolonging the life of tires now in use was inaugurated as Governor Bricker called on sheriffs and police departments to aid the patrol in conducting the drive.

Citations for speeds between 40 and 50 are not in the form of arrests because the state law sets the maximum speed at 50 miles, patrolmen pointed out. Officers will continue to stop motorists exceeding 40 and take names of both the car owner and driver will be turned over to the rationing board.

Scioto Ordnance Plant Patrol To Be Equivalent of Big City Police Force

Auxiliary Military Police Drill Regularly, Have Modern Equipment.

By BOB BYRD

The patrol that functions as an auxiliary military police unit in providing protection for lives and government property at the Scioto Ordnance Plant is rapidly becoming the equivalent of a modern streamlined metropolitan city police department.

The neatly uniformed guards that greet you at every entrance to the ordnance plant area, and who may check you at any time during your stay on the grounds to make sure you have the proper credentials to permit your presence on the property function as part of an organization that is responsible for a multitude of duties, chief of which is to see that government property and interests are given proper protection over thousands of acres.

CHIEF JAMES T. FLOWER

This protection goes on without a halt, divided among shifts of patrolmen. Operations are directed from a combined patrol and fire department building on the plant area where Patrol Chief James T. Flower, experienced in his line of work, heads a staff of assistants. Chief Flower was chief of the patrol at the Plum Brook Plant near Sandusky from Aug. 1, 1941, until he came to Marion several month sago. He is a former sheriff of Summit county (Akron), a former Ohio National Guard captain and an overseas veteran of the last war.

New Army Auxiliary

The recent reorganization of the patrol as an auxiliary of the army's military police has made some changes in the activities of the patrol members, but on the whole their job is the same as before—to enforce regulations in as efficient and courteous manner as possible.

One of the changes under the new setup is provision for a period of drill each day. The schedule calls for the drilling of each company about 15 minutes daily or one and one-quarter hours a week. Chief Flower pointed out that this training is valuable to a group of men who may be called upon at any time to deal with almost any imaginable form of trouble.

It takes considerable training to prepare a man to discharge the routine work of a patrolman—but the patrol busily prepares itself to handle many more things than routine work. Acting with the knowledge that you don't have time to prepare for trouble after the troubles occurs, Chief Flower is setting up the organization in such a way that each man will know almost automatically what to do in every conceivable type of emergency. In this connection, the patrol is making cooperative plans with city, county and state highway patrol officers over a wide area, and also with many civilian agencies that might be called in to help in cases of emergency.

Serve Throughout Area

The patrolmen are shifted to different parts of the area at regular intervals and in a short time will be able to find their way around over every part of the area in a blackout—just one of the many precautions that may never be put into actual use.

The patrol is operated for the war department by the United States Rubber Co., in connection with its operation of the entire plant. Patrolmen are furnished uniforms and equipment, and change into their uniforms when they report for work and back into civilian clothes when they leave. Next month they will get new oxford gray uniforms, eight-pointed caps and Sam Brown belts. Their present uniforms are of summer weight brown material.

Chief Flowers emphasized that the patrolmen are instructed to go about their work, especially their dealings with the public, with a "modern viewpoint" which assumes that a big majority of people want to obey regulations and do only what is permissible. "Our job," he said, "is to help employes and visitors obey regulations rather than enforce the regulations—although we're prepared to do that, too, in cases where it becomes necessary." However, "tough methods" are out except as a last resort, and Chief Flowers commented that only in rare instances is there any trouble when both the pub-

AMATEUR DAY PROGRAM SET

Series of Events for Marion City Park Benefit on Aug. 23 Listed.

Tentative arrangements for Marion's first annual Amateur Day program, to be staged next Sunday at Lincoln park, were announced today by Marion Hinklin, temporary Marion county defense recreation director, and George Baum, general chairman in charge of arrangements.

The program, as now set up, is divided into two parts.

Opening the program, the Bird-McGinnis Post No. 162, American Legion, will conduct flag raising ceremonies to be followed by a five-inning softball game between teams representing SWOC 1949 of the Marion Steam Shovel Co. and the Universal Cooler Corp. Following this game the Huber Manufacturing Co. and the General Excavator Co. teams will play another five-inning softball contest.

Contests Planned

Ball throwing and base running contests will follow.

Highlight of the second half of the program will be the crowning of Marion's first Amateur Day queen. Miss Marilyn Meseke of 210 South Prospect street, Miss America 1938, and four maids of honor will preside for the crowning.

An all-star softball team composed of the outstanding stars of the four Scioto Ordnance Plant teams entered in the Y. M. C. A. supervised softball leagues, will meet the Bucyrus Deal House team in a third five-inning game.

RED CROSS KNITTED GARMENTS WANTED

Call Made for All Work Issued Before March 1.

The local Red Cross office today issued a call for the return of all knitted articles, yarn for which was given out before March 1. Whether the garments are completed or only partially so, the office asks that they be returned not later than next Monday, Aug. 24.

While there is an urgent need for knitted articles—shipments are made every two weeks—the main reason for the appeal is to have the left-over yarn returned for redistribution. Accumulated yarn returned with completed garments must be used before more can be issued, the office explains.

The office is anxious that all completed garments be returned as early as possible because fall and winter work is getting under way.

Persons having garments which have not been finished because the knitter met up with difficulties in the process of making will receive help at the knitting school which is open each Monday and Friday from 2 to 4 p. m.

AMERICANS FLY 3 U. S. PLANES BEARING PARTY

Conference Brings Number of Decisions on Allied Conduct of War.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Aug 17 — Prime Minister Churchill of Britain has concluded a four-day trip to Moscow in which he and Joseph Stalin reached secret decisions in conjunction with United States generals and statesmen on stopping and defeating the Germans, it was disclosed officially today.

American pilots flew the prime minister and his Anglo-American party of twenty to Moscow in three big Consolidated Liberator (B-24) bombers. They arrived on the afternoon of Aug 12 and departed yesterday morning.

Communiques issued here and in London this afternoon, following Churchill's departure from Soviet soil, said the conferences resulted in a number of decisions on the conduct of the war and that the existing understandings between Russia, Great Britain and the United States had been reaffirmed in an atmosphere of "cordiality and complete sincerity."

A source close to the British prime minister, when asked what the conferences were about, replied:

"Any child in the street should know the answer to that."

Agree On Second Front

The fact that the U. S., Britain and Russia were in agreement on the urgency of establishing a second front in Europe this year was announced this spring following Soviet Commissar Molotov's trips to both London and Washington.

Twenty persons—including six Americans—were in the Churchill party on this first journey by a British prime minister to the Soviet Union.

They included General Sir Archibald P. Wavell, the British commander-in-chief in India, and Major General Russell P. Maxwell, U. S. commander in the Middle East.

The communique, after listing the participants in the conferences, thus summed up the results:

"A number of decisions were reached covering the field of the war against Hitlerite Germany and her associates in Europe. This just war of liberation both governments are determined to carry on with all their power and energy until complete destruction of Hitlerism and any similar tyranny has been achieved.

"The discussions, which were carried on in an atmosphere of cordiality and complete sincerity, provided an opportunity of reaffirming the existence of close friendship and understanding between the Soviet Union, Great Britain and the United States of America in entire accordance with the allied relationships existing between them."

U. S. Aid Attends

The prime minister, flying with W. Averell Harriman, President Roosevelt's personal envoy, was met at the airport by Molotov and Russian military dignitaries. On Wednesday evening, the day of his arrival, Churchill went to Kremlin and saw Stalin immediately.

They talked for three hours and forty minutes.

Again on Thursday night they had three long talks.

British generals attended the Stalin-Churchill conversations, while U. S. General Maxwell and U. S. Brig. General S. P. Spalding, charged with Russian lease-lend affairs in Washington, conferred with Marshal Klementi E. Voroshilov, commander of the Red armies in reserve.

All three powers later held joint conferences.

Circumstances of the meetings were fairly secret, but newspapermen got their first inkling of them when they saw three U. S. Liberators soaring over Moscow, escorted by a number of Russian fighter planes.

ANALYZING THE POLITICAL SITUATION—3

No Political Change Like in 1918 Is Indicated for This Year by Gallup Poll

This is the last of a series of three articles by the Gallup Poll analyzing the current political situation

By GEORGE GALLUP

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 17—The question in the minds of many political observers is whether or not the Republicans can duplicate their feat of 1918 when, in a period of war, they won control of congress from the Democrats.

Almost weekly soundings of political sentiment by the Institute indicate that the situation today is vastly different from what it was in 1918. These soundings show that if the fall Congressional elections were held at this time the Democrats would continue their control of congress, and that the number of seats would be approximately the same as at present, with a slight gain for the Democrats.

DR. GALLUP

Whereas in the 1940 election the Democrats won 268 seats in the house, the Institute estimates that if election were today the Democrats would win 276 seats. The Republicans, with 162 seats in 1940, would have 154 today.

This would give the Democrats a 122-seat majority.

Isolationist Issue

Political commentators have been expressing astonishment over the victories of a large number of pre-war isolationists in last Tuesday's primaries, including the overwhelming victory of Rep. Hamilyton Fish in the 26th New York Congressional district. It is clear that the issue of pre-war isolationism is not having as much effect on a candidate's chances for reelection as many have supposed it would.

Rep. Fish's victory was foretold by the Institute in a report published on July 26. Moreover that report, based on intensive interviewing of voters in the district, outlined in detail the reasons why Rep. Fish would win, despite his outspoken isolationism before Pearl Harbor.

In explaining the reasons, the Institute pointed out that Rep. Fish's former isolationist stand "is apparently not seriously hurting his chances right now at least, for the simple reason that the majority of voters in the district were as much opposed to active entrance into the war before Pearl Harbor as he was," and that the typical attitude of the voters in that respect was: "Ham guessed wrong, but so did a lot of us."

The truth is that in the Fish race, as in many others, isolationism was only one issue, and in the minds of voters apparently not the main issue. In the Fish district the Institute survey found considerable resentment among voters over "outside interference" from national and state political leaders who criticized Rep. Fish.

The victories of former isolationists do not mean that voters in either party are tired of the war, or opposed to the war, or anxious to make peace. On the contrary, all the evidence from scores of public opinion studies on the war show that voters in both parties are more than anxious to get on with the fighting, and willing to accept far more drastic measures for the prosecution of war.

The Sectional Picture

As for the Congressional seat picture, today's study indicated that the main Democratic gains would come in the East Central area (Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan), if election were today.

Results from New England continue to show a Democratic loss there; also a loss of seven seats in the Middle Atlantic section is shown.

Elsewhere the results indicate no great change.

Taking all sections into account, the net change for the country would be a Democratic gain of 8 seats over 1940 if the election were held at this time.

If Election Were Today

	Est. Dem. Seats	Est. Rep. Seats	Other Party
N. Eng.	10	18	—
M. Atl.	54	50	1
E. Cent.	47	30	—
W. Cent.	14	36	4
South	118	4	—
Mountain	12	4	—
Pac. Coast	21	12	—
National	276	154	5

A comparison with the 1940 election results in each setion indicates that, if the voting were today, the Democrats would lose four sets in New England, seven in the Middle Atlantic section, and two in the West Central states. They would gain 14 in the East Central, two in the South, two in the Rocky Mountain and one in the Pacific Coast area.

1918 Comparisons

In the 1918 Congressional elections the Republicans made their big gains in the Middle West, in contrast to the survey today which shows a Democratic gain in that area.

In the 1918 election the Republicans had several major issues. One of the biggest, which developed late in the campaign, was President Wilson's appeal to the country to return Democrats to Congress. On Oct. 25, he said:

"If you have approved my leadership, I earnestly beg that you will express yourself unmistakably to that effect by returning a Democratic majority to both Senate and House of Representatives."

According to press comments then and after the election, the statement had a boomerang effect. It was widely criticized as narrow and bigoted partisanship, and many felt that it switched votes to the Republicans.

A second issue raised by the Republicans was that Wilson wanted to be "too lenient" on the Germans. The armistice had not yet come, but the Fourteen Pointe had been put forward and it was clear that Germany was cracking. The President was criticized for writing "too many notes" to Germany, and the Republican opposition took up "Unconditional Surrender" as the watchword.

Some newspapers likewise attributed the Republican victory to unfair and unnecessarily high taxes. The charge was also raised that many Democratic congressmen were of low caliber, giving to "inexcusable sectionalism and narrow partisanship," and that constant petty bickering among the Democrats on Capitol Hill was hamstringing the war effort.

BLACKOUT PLANS FOR MARION UNCERTAIN

Marion Group Attends Trial Staged at Columbus.

No immediate plans are in sight for a test blackout in Marion, William R. Martin, civilian defense coordinator, said today.

Authority to stage a blackout must come from the Fifth Service Command headquarters at Fort Hayes, officials said, and it may be a matter of 60 days before such an order comes for a test in Marion.

Three members of Marion's civilian defense staff were in Columbus Friday night to observe the tri-village area blackout of Upper Arlington, Grandview and Marble Cliff.

Earl Ruhlman, air raid warden chief, Kenneth Fields, chief of the air raid warning system, and A. D. Boyd of the city fire department who is active in the auxiliary firemen division of civilian defense, attended.

Stenotype Class To Be Started in Marion

A class in stenotype, a machine method of recording dictation, will be started here on Wednesday night, Sept. 9, by Miss Mary W. Isham of Columbus. The method, a new in Marion, is used extensively in large cities, according to Miss Isham. The course will continue for 30 weeks, with classes every Wednesday night from 7:30 to 10. Miss Isham has under instruction a class of 10 men and women from Marion, LaRue and Bucyrus, who meet every Wednesday night at Hotel Marion.

Martel Grange Plans To Buy Service Flag

Martel grange Tuesday night decided to buy a service flag honoring all the boys from the community. Group discussions were held about grange activities since 1910. Practice for a radio program to be given over the Marion station Aug. 17 followed the regular meeting and games on the lawn were played.

WILDERNESS GIRL

By LETA ZOE ADAMS

YESTERDAY — Until the rancher, McIntyre, happened to remember Tyra Fleming, Sandy Morse despaired of learning anything about the Forbidden Land. But he was determined to visit the dangerous land just the same. Now he has located Tyra at a native fiesta in Onha and he and Helen Brotherton, who is financing his expedition, are watching her whirl in one of the native dances.

* * *

CHAPTER FIVE

Talk With Tyra

HELEN crowded closer to Sandy. "That girl settles your biggest argument against my going with you," she said.

Sandy nodded absently, for his eyes were still upon Tyra Fleming. "I can tell you better after I've talk to her."

The music ended abruptly. Tyra Fleming and her partner threaded a way to the four Americans. As she came closer Sandy saw that she wore guaraches on her feet, that bracelets and chains of gold pieces were looped around her throat and slender tanned arms. She walked with the flowing, effortless motion of perfect balance.

"Buenos tardes!" she greeted McIntyre gayly. "I am a Tehuana tonight. Josefa loaned me the costume. Did you ever see such riches? Twenty - dollar gold pieces!"

She held up an arm shaking the bracelets that adorned it. Her glance darted from one to the other.

McIntyre presented the three strangers with the remark that they were interested in the Forbidden Land.

While McIntyre spoke Sandy observed that the girl changed, not perceptibly, but in some obscure fashion. Part of the spontaneous gaiety left her face, there was an almost indistinguishable stiffening of her body.

"Oh, I see," she said, on a breath. "And what do you want in the Forbidden Land?"

Sandy's lips twisted into an engaging grin. "We might want a number of things, Miss Fleming, but mostly we're looking for that Mayan city on a high plateau. McIntyre tells us you and your father are doing some botanical work in that country. I am wondering if I could have a talk with you?"

She did not answer at once. Her eyes, hazel in color but flecked with brown, Sandy noted, did not leave his face.

At last she said slowly—"Yes, you may talk to me, if you wish. Where shall we go?"

"We might go over to the hotel," Sandy began, but added, "I don't like to break up your good time."

"I can come back," she said.

"We'll wait here,' Gill put in as Sandy turned away.

Getting Nowhere

Sandy took Tyra Fleming's arm, then, to guide her through the crowd. She walked with such a lissome step that he found himself mutely admiring. The touch of her arm, too, was firm and warm and vital.

Several Tehaunos spoke to her and she answered in the native tongue with apparent ease.

"You are an extraordinary girl, do you know it?" Sandy observed dryly.

"I have had an unusual life," she returned.

"With your father?"

"Yes, I have been practically raised with the Indians."

They stepped out into the night. For a moment there was silence between them, then Tyra said,

"Let's just walk around—it's cooler."

"You be the guide," Sandy said.

She turned down a quiet street. The air was drenched with fragrance, a whisper of a breeze stirred the palm fronds.

"Do you like the Isthmus?" she asked suddenly. It seemed a strange question, somehow. American. Conventional.

"I don't know. I hadn't thought about it," Sandy said honestly. "The town doesn't interest me especially. It's the country back there.." He jerked his head toward the south.

He thought he caught the sound of a faint sigh. "So many have wanted to uncover the secrets of the Forbidden Land?"

He looked down at her. "Miss Feming, do you mind telling me what you've found out about the country?"

"What do you want to know?"

"Everything. Have you found any hostile natives, or any natives at all? How do you travel—by mule train or canoe? Must one take extra precautions?"

She smiled a little. "I may be able to answer all of your questions at once. I don't think any expedition could penetrate far into the Forbidden Land no matter how you went or what you did."

Sandy regarded the dim upturned face with mock amusement. "You seem to have conquered it and I don't know that I ever saw anyone more healthy-looking."

"Yes, my father and I have conquered it," she said. Then, as if regretting such a blanket statement, she qualified it hastily. "Not all of it, of course. Only a tiny part. But there are just two of us—two white people I mean, for we do have some native boys. And we travel like Indians travel, light and fast. Mules? A mule would not live a week in the Forbidden Land."

"Why?" Sandy questioned sharply.

"Because of the vampire bats. The country is crawling with—things like that."

"They haven't appeared to bother you."

And she answered quickly. "How do you know? But it is a bad country, Mr. Morse. My father and I have traveled a great deal in Mexico and Central America. We have never seen such a bad country."

"If you're referring to all the natives' banshee tales about spirits running rampant there, I'm afraid I can't take you very seriously," Sandy said. "I believe only in things I can see—ruins, stones and hieroglyphics. That's why I'm an archeologist."

Another silence fell between them, broken only by their slow steps on the hard-packed walk and by that sudden whisper in the palms overhead.

Tyra Fleming's voice drifted out to him at last. "There are many things we can't see with our eyes. We can only feel them—with our hearts. And, often, they have nothing to do with logic—or science."

Impasse

What did she mean? Well, it didn't matter. "We won't go into that, now," Sandy said. "The fact is, Miss Fleming, I intend to hunt for that Maya city on the high plateau, and since you are going back soon, it seems to me it would be a good idea if we joined forces and traveled together."

Again she was silent for a moment. Then her words came with quiet firmness. "That is impossible."

The calm rebuff staggered Sandy. "Do you mean that you refuse to join another group of fellow countrymen whose object in exploring the Forbidden Land is surely as worthwhile as your own? Will you explain the reason for your attitude, Miss Fleming, or I'll be sorry if you choose to think me rude."

She gazed ahead. There was a stubborn tilt to her chin.

Sandy stopped dead-still and glared down at her. "Look, is there anything that will make you change your mind?"

She hesitated, then answered distinctly. "I'm afraid not."

Sandy felt a sudden impulse to shake the girl, to see her earrings swing and her gold necklaces jangle.

But he only said in a voice that was strained to the breaking point. "Then there's no use wasting words. We'll go back to the fiesta."

"We're already there."

Sandy stopped her at the gate. "Dont think this is finished," he said grimly. "It has only begun."

She gave him look for look. "Has it?" she questioned softly. Then she slipped away through the crowd.

Our Ally, Mexico

Lonely Mexican Port Important

INTERNED — Japanese ordered to leave the Pacific coast of Mexico dine out-of-doors on a Japanese ranch near Mexico City, where numbers have been interned by the Mexican government for the duration of the war. Unguarded, they are permitted to work on farms near their new home. Others have been sent to Guadalajara, also well inland.

This is the last of a series of articles on Mexico and its place in world affairs today.

By SAM JACKSON
Wide World Feacures Writer

MAZATLAN, Mexico, Aug. 17 —Some idea of Japanese military preparations at this—the most strategic port between San Diego and Panama—lies before me in the form of a panoramic picture.

It is of postcard depth but about two feet long. For giving a detailed picture of a seaport, its buildings, islands, bays and defenses, it is the most complete thing imaginable.

At the lower right corner appears the legend, "Tot. V. Tokyo." This evidently means "fotografia" (photograph) via Tokyo, and is equivalent to our own required labeling of foreign-made goods. I bought it from a street hawker for the equivalent of an American nickel.

Complete Map

In it you can clearly pick out the great market which is the nerve center of the place, you can trace every main street, spot every business building and determine the bays, beaches and islands of this broken harbor.

If this were simply a business venture to sell nickel reproductions to a trickle of tourists it was a bold one. In the light of events it probably would be recognized as a military picture of prime importance, with the Japanese "paying part of the freight" by selling it back to peddlers.

The headquarters of General Lazara Cardenas is out of the picture, but at the time it was taken he could scarcely have taken up his war-time command of west coast defenses.

The fact that he made this his base of operations shows its importance.

The surrounding country is largely, but not entirely, desert. To the north it is nearly 800 miles airline to the American border. There is no auto road through the great deserts of Sinaloa and Sonora and the sole transportation is via the Southern Pacific of Mexico.

Access to Rail Center

In enemy hands, it also would dominate the 700-mile-long Gulf of California. On the map this looks pretty serious, for the gulf leads right up to the Colorado River, the wealthy Imperial valley of California and hence to Los Angeles.

But army officers I have talked with do not take this back-door invasion very seriously. The land on both sides is almost completely desolate. The Colorado is not navigable for large vessels and it has a tremendous tidal bore which makes operation of small craft difficult and dangerous.

There are only fragments of roads stretching down into the desert from American border towns and they have been the scenes of many tragedies of heat and thirst.

However, as long as ten years ago there was an active fishing colony at LaBomba, 60 miles south of Mexicali. For a time, Americans who could get their trucks over the desert trail did a thriving business buying gulf sea bass 6 feet long or so for 10 cents apiece.

All the fishermen were Japs.

STEEL PROCUREMENT PROBLEM GROWING

Magazine Reports Obtaining Compositions More Difficult.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 17—The steel procurement problem, as far as getting specified compositions is concerned, is becoming more complicated.

Noting this today, the magazine Steel quoted an unnamed metallurgist:

"Even under the highest priorities we are unable to get steels we formerly used. It is getting to be a case of hunting around in an effort to get something fairly close to what we want. In more and more cases we cannot get what we want and we just have to get along with what we are able to get.

"It now even is becoming difficult to get carbon steels. Where we started out with carbon steels on certain uses, the steel now is coming through with alloy residuals. That results from our present steelmaking practice in which alloying elements are carried over from scrap. This trend not only adds to our manufacturing difficulties but it should cause grave concern because of the wastage of alloying elements that results from this practice.

"In the meantime the national emergency steel situation is confused. Everybody wants to know about the NE steels but nobody has the answer. We have tried out some NE steels but do not feel the experience so far accumulated is very helpful. In short, the wartime steel metallurgy each week gets to be more of a headache."

The magazine calculated national production of ingots (cell ½ point last week to 97 per cent of estimated capacity. The Pittsburgh district dropped ½ point to 93 per cent, Wheeling 4 to 80½ and Cincinnati 3 to 89, while Detroit climbed 2 to 90, Cleveland 1.5 to 97.5 and Youngstown was unchanged at 94.

Neckties have been invented that are printed with a fluorescent chemical that glows in darkness.

Four out of five youngsters fall contentedly into school routine within a few days. The other one is unhappy his entire school year. Largely because his vision is defective—and he can't make the progress.

Before school starts make sure your youngster is not handicapped with defective vision.

RAIL TRAFFIC TERMED BLOCK

Cleveland Economist Declares Lack of Facilities Will Hinder War Effort.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 15—Brig Gen. Leonard P. Ayres declared today "railroad traffic, and not scarce materials, or fabricating capacity, or industrial manpower, will be the limiting factor which will restrict the expansion of our production of munitions."

The Cleveland economist, who retired last month as chief of the army's statistical branch, added:

"The reason is that the demands made on the railroads to carry freight are steadily and rapidly rising, while their capacity to do the carrying cannot be much further increased. With carrying ability restricted, and demands steadily increasing, the limits of capacity will in time be reached, and that time is not far off."

General Ayers, a vice president of Cleveland Trust Co., noted in the bank's monthly business bulletin that "the volume of freight had nearly doubled since the war began" in 1939 and continued:

"It might naturally be supposed that the limiting factor in the munitions part of our war program would be shortages of materials, and the importance of these factors is emphasized just now by the widespread reports that we cannot produce enough steel to meet our war needs. These assumed material shortages are more nearly the products of miscalculation and misallocation than they are of actual lack of sufficient materials. After all, we produce far more steel than Germany and Japan and Russia and England combined.

"Our railroads are doing an outstandingly good job of wartime transportation. Probably they can just about succeed in carrying the peak volumes of autumn freight in September and October without any serious car shortages.

"Nevertheless, it ought not to be assumed that they can indefinitely continue to transport volumes of freight that increase steadily and unceasingly from month to month. The limits of their capacity have been nearly reached, and when they are reached the volume of our industrial output will have to level off no matter what other forms of transportation may be called into service, and no matter how large the war appropriations may be."

WAR LIVESTOCK SCENE BRIGHT

Experts Increase Estimates of Every Major Feed Crop Raised in U. S.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 17—When government agricultural experts increased estimates of every major feed crop raised in the United States they immeasurably brightened the nation's wartime livestock production picture.

This, coupled with the fact that a survey showed substantially fewer cattle are on feed in the corn belt compared with a year ago, has done much to relieve fear that feed supplies may not be enough to go around during the next year.

Considering the sharp increase in population of grain consuming livestock, revised forecasts of production of major feeds, now estimated about 6 per cent more than last year, proved to be very welcome news. Nevertheless, before 1943 crops become available, market experts anticipate there may be a tight adjustment between supplies and requirements.

Principal Crops

Here are the principal crops in sight on the basis of new estimates:

1942: corn, bushels 2,753,696,000; oats, 1,331,511,000; barley, 416,932,000; grain sorghums, 131,285,000; total 4,633,424,000.

1941: corn, bushels 2,672,541,000; oats, 1,176,107,000; barley, 358,709,000; grain sorghums, 153,968,000; total 4,361,325,000.

Remaining stocks of old corn are not expected to exceed 500,000,000 bushels, if that large. Using that figure, the total indicated supply with the new crop would be 3,254,000,000 bushels compared with 3,318,000,000 on the season which will end Sept. 30. Last year there was a carryover of 646,000,000 bushels. Stocks of old oats on farms July totaled 191,688,000 bushels, compared with 220,048,000 a year ago.

Salient Facts

On the other hand, salient facts from the livestock consuming standpoint are: on Jan. 1 the nation's livestock population was the largest on record. Cattle population was almost 5 per cent greater than a year previous, hog population up 11 per cent; sheep and lamb population 3 per cent; chickens 12 per cent and turkeys 6 per cent. Although cattle on feed in corn belt states is now 19 per cent less than a year ago, the nation's population of cattle and calves next Jan. 1 is expected to be the largest on record and about 3 per cent greater than at the beginning of this year.

The 1942 pig crop was estimated about 25 per cent greater than last year, and the largest on record; lamb crop 2 per cent less than 1942 and chicken production 10.5 per cent greater and the largest on record. Heavy feeding of chickens for eggs and dairy cattle for milk is under way but pastures are excellent. Increased quantities of wheat will be used for feed.

No Masculine Touch To Characterize Waves

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 15—Those waves are going to do man-sized jobs, but the masculine touch ends there.

Lieut. Comm. Mildred H. McAfee, chief of the women's naval volunteers, said yesterday the navy means to make the waves feminine—not just in name but also in looks.

Their uniformes were designed by Mainbocher, American-born stylist who created the Duchess of Windsor's wedding gown.

Underdress will be left to the discretion of each member, Comm. McAfee said, adding there would be no ban on make-up.

Only the shade of the stockings remains unchosen — they'll be either cotton or lisle.

Father Joins Navy as Next Best Thing

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 15—"Son, if you ever need me I will go to you, no matter where it might be," Frank Hardt, Jr., St. Louis construction man, told his son, Frank, an army lieutenant.

The young soldier was sent to Fort Mills, Corregidor, and now is listed as missing in action.

The 49-year-old father can't go to Corregidor—right away. So he has done the next best thing—enlisted in the navy as chief petty officer.

A Reputation Worth Preserving

MARION was pleased and honored for having been chosen by Ohio's Order of DeMolay as the place for its eighteenth annual conclave, which closed yesterday after a two-day session. This was one of the comparatively few state organization meetings scheduled here this year and it served to help keep our city on the map as an ideal spot for such assemblies.

Various conditions and circumstances have combined in the past to make this one of the state's most popular sites for conventions and the number held here over a period of years is probably larger than in any other Ohio city of comparable size. We wish to retain the reputation for friendliness and accommodations which has won us that distinction and beyond doubt we will be able to do so.

Conventions are not as numerous now as in normal times and that probably accounts for the relatively small number taking place in Marion this year. This condition is virtually certain to continue for the duration of the war, but in the meantime we can make it a point to maintain our record of hospitality by being cordial and helpful to all visitors, whether they come as individuals or as organizations. Then after the world gets straightened around and people resume the many peacetime activities now necessarily sidetracked for wartime duties, there will be conventions and other get-together-ers again and Marion will be in position to resume its role of leadership as a host city. It's a role well worth retaining, for it advertises the community not only as a pleasant place to visit, but also as one where people like to live and establish their homes.

Whether a convention gives Marion that sort of advertising depends entirely upon us and our attitude toward the visitors. That we have been sufficiently friendly and cooperative in the past is evident from the selection of our city as the meeting place of many organizations, some being so well pleased with their reception and treatment that they have made this their convention choice more than once. That we regard as an indisputable testimonial to Marion's high rating among Ohio's cities and to the quality of its friendliness. It is a testimonial to be proud of and certainly one we want to keep before us as a guide for the future.

American Self-Defense in India

THE state department's declaration of policy covering United States armed forces in India tells more than could be included comfortably in any other way about that area's present difficulties. Americans are there to help China by fighting the Japanese. They are not there to fight the Indians, except in self defense. Whatever may be necessary in the line of military rule to control rebellion is the responsibility of the British.

It may be expected, of course, that sooner or later some mischievous Indian or Japanese undercover agent will arrange for the Indians to wedge their American guests into an embarassing predicament. The purpose would be, of course, to persuade the thoughtless that the United States was opposed to Indian independence. To be forwarned is to be forearmed.

Americans are in India to help lick Japan, Germany and Italy. They are in Great Britain to help lick Japan, Germany and Italy. They are everywhere they are in this global war to help lick Japan, Germany and Italy. They have no other purpose.

A Chance To Learn Something

HERE is something happening about military service that is getting lost in the war shuffle—the fact that for many young men it is a chance to learn something. Too often the emphasis is placed on the other young men who are chiefly aware of the sacrifice they are making.

But for hundreds of thousands of men ambitious to develop a skill and to find better jobs than they have had, the prospect of the training they will get in an armed force of specialists spells opportunity in capital letters. They see in the operation of the selective service act a means of getting themselves out of a rut.

This is true not only of the wholly untrained draftee hoping for a chance to learn about engines or airplanes or communications. While they have the most to gain, even trained men, including doctors and lawyers, look forward to the improvement of their professional skill. They believe their sacrifice will be compensated by intensive training and practice.

A sailor on furlough reports that the men on his ship in a surprisingly large number of cases spend much of their time when off duty studying mathematics, hoping for a better rating, planning for better jobs when the war is over. A doctor leaving for duty in the medical corps plans to study for the examination that would make him a member of the American College of Surgeons. A young day laborer, receiving his induction notice, says he hopes he will be accepted, because he may be able to learn enough to take up a trade somewhere. It is taking place throughout America. The prospective reward of military service is confined no longer to the honor that belongs by right to those who fight. It has been broadened to include the skills that must be developed by armed forces of specialists.

News Behind the News

Unusual Alibis Heard as House Repeals Nov. 1 Date for Paying Dependents.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—Unanimously, the house has repealed its resolution delaying payment of the monthly arrears allowances to wives, parents and children of fighting men until Nov. 1, two days before the election.

The repealer has to come up in the senate today, and it no doubt will be adopted there, although the senate is less amenable to correcting its mistakes, as only one-fifth of its membership is up for reelection this year, whereas all the house is facing the voters.

Thus the injustice, brought to the attention of the public by this column, as published in newspapers of July 15, July 27 and Aug. 11, is likely to be fully rectified—but not without some interesting ramifications.

For a time it appeared nothing would be done. When Rep. John Rankin, Democrat, of Mississippi, officially proposed a correction in the house, he actually ran into opposition from the war department. Policy there was being guided by Col. Thurston Hughes, administrative officer, handling the law.

An official announcement of the department's position was made, in an obvious effort to stop the Rankin movement. It seemed likely to succeed, as congress was practically in recess, and the department was openly willing to assume the responsibility.

One of the Democratic leaders in charge, (not acting leader Jack Cochran, of St. Louis), was against doing anything, and there were not many congressmen around. Rankin was blocked.

Protests from Dependents

But letters started coming in from those wives and parents in need, who did not know how they would buy food and pay the rent until two days before election.

Down in Kentucky, Chairman Andrew May, of the house military affairs committee, heard of the Rankin movement, which corresponded to what he wanted to do in the first place with the original law. He came back from his vacation. (Incidentally his job, handling army legislation, has been among the most onerous in congress, and entitled him to one.)

May went to the war department and argued, also to the navy, trying to get the official stopper withdrawn. The army weakened, only slightly, but enough. The navy wholeheartedly indorsed the correction.

In a letter to acting Speaker Bulwinkle, dated Aug. 5, the acting navy secretary, James Forrestal, wrote:

"The making of these payments at once will have a decided effect on morale. The navy recommends enactment of the proposed legislation."

That did the job.

It is a remarkable matter when the government openly corrects a mistake, and all who had part in this correction deserve resounding cheers. The easier pattern of official behavior in such matters is to insist that there was no mistake, and to concoct all the excuses and arguments which lawyers can devise to justify a blunder.

Contradictory Letters

Acting Secretary of War Patterson, a brilliant New York judge and attorney, for example, wrote a letter, also dated Aug. 5, to the house speaker, making two pleas, which contradicted each other, in substantiation of the position which Col. Hughes had led him into.

Mr. Patterson said it would be discrimination against our soldiers overseas, who cannot get the necessary blanks quickly, if he paid the dependents of soldiers in this country first.

This, of course, is a matter of hunger and rent paying. Judge Patterson's argument would have you believe that, when faced with hundreds of thousands of hungry women and children, it is a "discrimination" to feed any of them first.

In a hospital, Judge Patterson, if faced with a hundred dying men, would refuse to treat any until he could get enough doctors to treat all at once—and the day before election, presumably.

His other point denied his first one. It was that "a large force of reasonably well-trained persons, many typewriters, and the necessary desks and filing equipment and forms are required"—perhaps 3,000 persons to look over 1,000,000 forms.

He said it would, therefore, be physically impossible to get out all the checks even on Nov. 1, so he intended to practice some of the "discrimination" he decrees. He only thinks it a sin to do so before Nov. 1.

Of course this is no excuse for delaying everyone, but he used it and thereby unintentionally suggested that if the second front is to be opened on the same basis, perhaps this country needs a swifter assistant secretary of war.

The Rubber Problem

Post-War Planning Muddles Proposed Solution.

WHEN President Roosevelt appointed a three-man commission headed by Bernard Baruch to report on the rubber situation he took the first definitive step since the Japanese struck Pearl Harbor to bring the rubber problem to a showdown.

Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor and its subsequent easy conquest of Malaya and the Netherlands Indies deprived the United States of the source of 98 percent of its supply of rubber just as it was embarking on the greatest war effort in its history.

On June 23, 1939, more than two months before the war started in Europe, the United States and Great Britain signed a treaty providing for barter of 600,000 bales of American cotton for about 90,000 tons of British rubber from Malaya. The cotton and rubber were to be held in reserve "against the contingency of major war emergency." At the time of the fall of France in June, 1940, the United States had received delivery of approximately one-third of the rubber due under the barter agreement.

An act approved June 25, 1940, authorized Reconstruction Finance Corp. to create government corporations and make loans for the acquisition and holding of strategic raw materials. On June 28 the Rubber Reserve Co. was set up and it made arrangements at once with the international rubber regulation committee — the British-Dutch cartel that controlled Far Eastern production and exports—to enable it to acquire 150,000 tons of rubber, by the end of 1940 without disturbing market conditions.

In August, 1940, a second agreement provided for purchase of 180,0000 tons during 1941. On March 7, 1941, following agreement by the cartel to permit production up to 100 percent of capacity, the 1941 purchase program was increased by 100,000 tons. The program thus called for acquisition of 520,000 tons up to the end of 1941. The amount actually delivered in the United States by that time included, in addition to the 90,000 tons of barter rubber, only 277,514 tons bought by the Rubber Reserve Co., or a total of 367,514 tons. Industry inventories of 171,000 tons raised the nation's reserve to 538,514 tons as of the end of last year. Amounts then in transit or shipped before Far Eastern sources were cut off increased the national stock pile by the spring of 1942 to approximately 700,000 tons.

PLANS for production of synthetic rubber have engendered a bitter controversy between the advocates of the petroleum and alcohol process of making butadiene. Original plans call for production from petroleum of almost all of the butadiene scheduled. It was not until May 27, 1942—two days after a senate agriculture subcommittee with Sen. Gillette of Iowa as chairman, had opened hearings for investigation of the alcohol process—that the war production board announced that butadiene for 200,000 of the 700,000 tons of Buna-S would be processed from alcohol. The prominence of petroleum interests in the synthetic rubber program led to charges that the government's rubber authorities were biased in their favor and that the petroleum industry was seeking to monopolize a new industry. Proponents of the alcohol process saw in it a means not only, as they contended, of expediting the rubber program, but of benefiting farmers through removal of crop surpluses.

It has been predicted that by the end of the war it will be possible to produce synthetic rubber at prices below the average charged for crude during the two years before Pearl Harbor, and that consequently natural rubber will no longer be able to compete in the American market with the synthetic product. Vice President Wallace, on the other hand, has suggested that higher yielding strains of hevea rubber recently developed will result in reduction in the price of crude to a point where tariff protection would be required to maintain a synthetic industry.

IN an article in New York Times magazine on July 12, Mr. Wallace directed attention to the fact that, in order to prevent building up of "vested interests which, after the war would be sitting on the doorstep of congress clamoring for a tariff," there had been included in all synthetic rubber contracts, at the instance of the President, a clause giving the government the right to acquire the plants at the close of the war. While Mr. Wallace had not felt that the oil interests alone could succeed in abrogating that clause, he feared that with alcohol in the picture, it is quite possible that an effort will be made to get the farmers to run political interference for both alcohol and oil in an effort to get congress to knock out the President's clause for government ownership.

The vice president deplored, as foreshadowing a new isolationism, suggestions that the United States must never again depend on any source of rubber outside its own borders. He expressed the opinion that after the war only a few small rubber alcohol plants should be kept operating by government subsidy, to provide an outlet for surplus corn and wheat and to preserve the technical knowledge for any necessary later expansion. The bulk of supplies, he contended, should be obtained from increased production in Latin America and the Far East. Others have pointed out that a certain amount of domestic synthetic rubber production after the war would serve to check a revived rubber cartel from holding crude prices at artificially high levels.

A Father's Farewell To Soldier Son

By W. Henson Purcell.

WELL, Bill, your number is up. You are going to the army. There is a job of serious, nasty, uncivilized business to be taken care of and you have been assigned a part in it.

The task is unpleasant, repulsive. The assignment is different from anything that you had planned. Yet, it is a privilege as well as a responsibility. For only Americans—the finest of the nation's manhood—are eligible to march with Uncle Sam's armed citizenry and to participate in this grim game of war.

There is, now, but one thing to do. Make the most of it. Be a soldier in every sense of the word.

I told you, as a little curly-headed boy, when you started to school, that I wanted you to endeavor always to be the best in your classes. I had no idea that you would achieve that distinction. I had not been that caliber of student before you. But that kind of aiming never has a bad effect on the score.

Then, when you grew up and were thinking of your first job, I told you that, even though you were employed at nothing more important than ditch-digging, I wanted you to try to be the best ditch digger on the job. I had no idea that you would achieve such top-rank standing in your chosen vocation, I had not. But ambition and the will to get ahead never kept anybody down.

Now, as you march with millions of other sons from millions of other American homes, I want you to put all that you have into this business of soldiering. It matters not whether you ever wear bars or stars if you are man enough to be a good soldier. And being a good soldier means more than drilling and marching and fighting—and dying.

This is something millions of fathers—and mothers—might have said. It was written for The Daily American of West Frankfort, Ill., by the managing editor, W. Henson Purcell when his son, William H. Purcell Jr., was inducted.

It means living—in a man's world—as a man should live.

There is an inclination on the part of too many men, once they are in the army—away from the influences of home and family and reputation—to cut loose, go the gaits. There is in the army, as in civilian life, every type of manhood and of every social strata. Every man is on his own. The choice is yours.

Men, like water, ultimately seek their own level—in the army as elsewhere. Don't lower your standards, Bill.

THEN, there is the matter of soldiering. The fellows who have difficulty with army life are those who refuse to adjust themselves to the rigid discipline that, although quite stern and harsh, is as necessary as are guns and tanks and planes. The "yes, sir" men are those who get along in the army.

To attempt to buck the game is folly. The army is bigger than any man in it. Failure to become a working part of it is the worst mistake any soldier can make. Army life is not easy. To cultivate a mental feeling of resentment and self pity can only make it more difficult. That is true of any station in life.

So, I hope, Bill, that you will be able to accept your lot in this grim business as just another chapter in life's exacting school of experience and endeavor to get out of it something worthwhile; something that will help in the year ahead.

You can always find that something if you search diligently for it. Never cease searching.

I am saying these things to you—not because you are different from the millions of other young men who have gone and are going out to engage in this world contest in death—but because you are of my own flesh and blood.

Because, man though you are, you will ever be that little boy of mine.

The uniform that will shortly be issued to you stands for the high and noble principles upon which this nation was founded and has since existed—principles that, to much of the rest of the world, are unknown. It stands for freedom among men and nations; the right to live and the will to let live. It stands for humanity, civilization, Christianity.

IT has never gone to war except in defense of the principles for which it stands. It has never gone on a rampage of conquest or oppression. That uniform, Bill, is the hope of Old Glory and 130 million Americans. Wear it proudly.

I remember well that day, almost 24 years ago, when, while sitting in a lecture at Camp Gordon, I was handed a telegram that announced that you had made me a father. I was a soldier, then. You were the war baby.

I remember the day, four months later, when I gazed for the first time upon your face. I remember every day of your life since that time. I shall watch—

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Wednesday, Aug. 17, 1932.

Friends of William H. Seiter, 71, Pleasant township farmer who had just rounded out his fiftieth successive year as custom thresher in Marion county, gave him a party at the Pleasant Township school. Mr. Seiter estimated he had threshed 1,250,000 bushels of wheat and oats for Marion county farmers.

In what was believed to be the first instance of a blind person attending a theater in Marion, Mrs. Hannah Fletcher, 37, of Richwood, attended a show at the Ohio and told a reporter she was a regular theater fan, being able to follow the film stories from what she could hear. She regularly attended the theater in Richwood.

Arrangements for the annual Marion County Farm Bureau picnic Aug. 25 at Garfield park were announced by L. V. Hite, president.

Joseph Voll and son Francis of Lafayette street returned from a visit of several days at the home of Mr. Voll's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert B. Huebner, of Buchanan, Mich.

Mrs. Clifford Gorton and children of South High street and Miss Josephine Ling and Jack Ling of West Columbia street were spending the week at Rye Beach.

Sons were born to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Winters of Thompson street and Mr. and Mrs. James Bollinger of Quarry street.

Miss Mary E. Helphrey, a member of the Harding High school faculty for several years, became the bride of Dayle M. Tulloss at the home of the bride's parents in Utica.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, Aug. 17, 1922.

Senator Willis of Delaware had accepted an invitation to act as temporary chairman and keynoter of the Republican state convention to open in Columbus Tuesday.

Sons were born to Mr. and Mrs. Arliss Richard of Merkle avenue and Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Wilkins of East Church street.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Bush of Orchard street and Mr. and Mrs. Eli Bush of East Center street were visiting relatives in Pittsburgh.

Mrs. S. L. Leeka, Miss Caryl Leeka and Warren Leeka of East Center street returned from a five-week motor trip in southern Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana.

Daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Burns of Youngstown and Mr. and Mrs. Grover C. Snyder of Silver street. Mrs. Burns was formerly Miss Ida Speece of Kirkpatrick.

Shortly after he had been arrested on a charge of stealing a horse and buggy from Joe Daniels of Richwood, an 18-year-old Union county youth, was rushed to Mt. Carmel hospital in Columbus for an emergency appendix operation.

'This Is The Army'

Soldiers in Irving Berlin's Music Show Not Permitted Any Let-down on Broadway Duty.

By DAMON RUNYON

THE soldier members of the cast of Irving Berlin's Broadway show, "This Is The Army" are under military regulations the same as if they were back in camp. In fact the theater where the show is playing is to all intents and purposes a camp with few of the rules left out.

During the performance the soldiers are considered to be on duty and since military regulations provide that a soldier on duty may leave his post "only when properly relieved" none of the temporary actors are permitted to leave the theater until the show is over. There are M. P.'s all around the place to make sure there are no breaches of military etiquet and to preserve order.

If a member of the cast, which numbers about 300 soldiers, is late for a performance he is subject to fatigue duty, such as scrubbing and mopping and other odd jobs backstage. If he should miss a performance entirely he would be deemed AWOL, no less, and returned to his original military station where he would probably be hurled into the guardhouse.

THE stage managers of "This Is The Army" are sergeants and when they desire a hearing they just bawl "Fall in!" Like that. There is no back-gab from the actors, as you may imagine. They cannot tear for their dressing rooms at the final curtain until the sergeant says "Fall out." The bulletin board backstage is covered with military orders, rather nice conventional notices of the regular type.

The members of the cast, whose regular army pay starts at $50 per month plus rations and maintenance get $16.45 per week in New York to cover the latter.

They line up and go through the usual army pay day procedure to get their dough. Those of them get sick, they report on "sick call" to the 'orderly room' in the theater at 9:45 a. m. when there is a medical officer in attendance.

At 10 o'clock every morning, except Sunday, the cast of "This Is The Army" reports for roll call at the theater. They then receive rifles and belts and are marched to a vacant lot at 59th street and 10th avenue where they drill. The rifles are kept in the basement of the theater and are cleaned and inspected daily by the officer in command of the company.

NO EXCEPTIONS are made in the drill which is a big attraction over on 10th avenue. As the soldiers march to and from their impromptu parade ground, folks stick their heads out of windows and applaud. Incidentally the cast of the show know their sassafras when it comes to drilling. At 5 p. m. daily they stand retreat as the flag over the theater is being lowered and the national anthem played.

In addition to this, the men attend one section lectures on an average of once a week, report for physical examination once a month and view a sex hygiene film once every two months, all of which is regulation. Those who have not received their quota of tetanus and typhoid shots must also check in for them at the proper times.

About the only departure from military routine is that the boys are not awakened by a bugler, of whom Irving Berlin sings so beautifully in the show. Some of them stay in hotels which give special rates to service men. Others live with friends and relatives. But they are not permitted to forget for a moment that "This Is The Army."

In Woman's Defense

By H. W. BLAKESLEE
Wide World Science Editor

NEW YORK—Statisticians are rising to defend American women against the charge that they are on the average short and dumpy.

That description was attributed to the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, after measuring 10,000 women.

Neither this short and dumpy stature, nor that of the movie stars, represent the average American woman, say the statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

First, they assert, it is foolish to say there is an average. Our women are from so many races and differ so widely that there is no average.

Second both the USDA and the life insurance studies show that the girls today are taller than their mothers, and that the American woman's stature is growing toward the point where she will be dumpy.

The Washington report is challenged by measuring the 10,000 in their stocking feet and bringing them thus of 2 inches due to average shoe heels. The report credited the women as being 5 ft. 3 1/6 inches. Actually the ladies stand 5 ft. 5 most of the time.

Finally, say the statisticians, the Washington report was a little biased because it included many women from the eastern seaboard's low income families. Other groups have produced tall ones.

Destroyer Celebrates 25th Birthday

By The Associated Press

LONDON—Britain's oldest destroyer, the three-funneled 900-ton Skate, twice ice-bound in the last war, recently celebrated her twenty-fifth birthday at sea "full of fight," the British ministry of information reported.

The veteran destroyer, built in the "dash" rush of 1917, it was stated, had sailed thousands of miles in the last year guarding convoys coming from a northern port.

Skate's birthday was celebrated with a special "jubilee dance" when she returned to base. She received a refit and a new coat of paint, said the ministry of information. The affection of the men for the ship was so great that many tried to rejoin her when they had paid off.

Skate is the last ship of the old "Admiralty R" class and the only three-funneled destroyer in the Royal Navy.

No Short Cut to the Army

By The Associated Press

BELLINGHAM, Wash. — Stanley [illegible], shoe clerk, was employed in a store one block from the Army's induction center when he was ordered to report for induction. Army regulations, however, prevented him from walking over to the center to take his examination. Instead he had to go to his former home in Bellingham and then return to Tacoma with two other selectees, traveling approximately 100 miles instead of one block.

Old Fort Scott in San Francisco was designed after Fort Sumter, with 36-foot thick walls, and controlled the Golden Gate.

HOW TO SOLVE THE PUZZLES

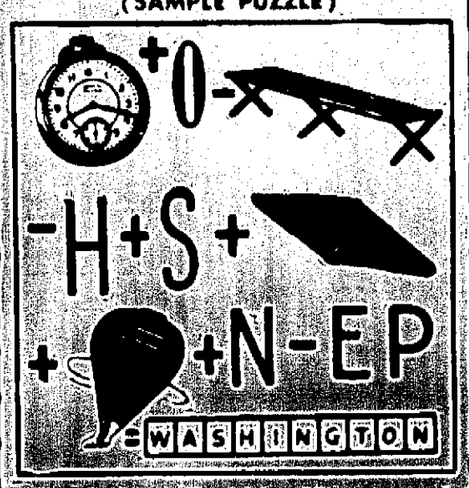
(SAMPLE PUZZLE)



Note the Sample Puzzle above. It was purposely made easy to show you how to solve the puzzles. Notice that there are several objects illustrated and also that there are several plus and minus signs, which means that you add or subtract. Let's solve the puzzle together. The first object is a WATCH. Therefore, write down the letters W-A-T-C-H. Next you are told to add the letter O, and by so doing you have W-A-T-C-H-O. Then you see a minus sign followed by a COT, which means that you deduct the letters C-O-T. That leaves you W-A-H, from which you are then told to deduct H, leaving you W-A. Next you are told to add S, and HINGE, giving you W-A-S-H-I-N-G-E. To that add TOP, and the letter N, and you have W-A-S-H-I-N-G-E-T-O-P-N. Take away E P as directed, and you have the name of the Father of our Country, WASHINGTON.

Mrs. Newman and A. W. Kette Wed in Richmond, Ind.

THE marriage of Mrs. Mary Newman of Richmond, Ind., and Albert W. Kette of Marion was solemnized Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Salters in Richmond. To repeat their vows, read by Rev. Fremont Frooley, pastor of the Methodist church at Richmond, the couple stood before an improvised altar of palms and white lilies, lighted with tapers.

For the ceremony Mrs. Newman chose a dress of green crepe fashioned with a V-neckline and three-quarter length sleeves. Her flowers were a corsage of yellow rosebuds. Her attendants, Mrs. Frank Kette of Marion, sister-in-law of Mr. Kette, and Mrs. Salters wore two-piece costumes of brown and each had a corsage of pink rosebuds. Mr. Kette's brother, Frank Kette of Marion, and Mr. Salters served as his best men.

The wedding music was played by Miss Joan Parks of Boston. Her selections included "I Love Thee," "Because," "Through the Years" and "In My Garden," and the traditional wedding marches.

A reception in the garden for 50 guests, followed the ceremony. Bowls of flowers were on either side of a three-tiered wedding cake topped with a bridal couple, forming the table centerpiece, and assisting were Misses Joan Parks, Shirley Wilson, Joan Heath and Wanda Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Kette will make their home at 1180 East Church street. Mrs. Kette, who formerly operated the Little Miss Richmond dress shop in Richmond, is a member of Phi Delta Gamma, national sorority. Mr. Kette is active in business and civic affairs here and heads the insurance business of A. W. Kette & Co.

Limit on Hot Water Proposed in New York

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 17—Timetable bathing, shaving, laundering and dishwashing appears in prospect for New York City apartment house dwellers, whose supply of hot water would be limited to certain hours of the day under a rationing plan outlined by Mayor F. H. La Guardia.

Hot water would flow only between the hours of 6:30 and 9 a. m. and 5 and 8 p. m. under the program formulated by a committee of real estate boards and associations.

The mayor, announcing that New Yorkers will be asked in about a week to accept the limited hot water, said yesterday that if the public did not cooperate "we may all have to endure hot-waterless days" because of a scarcity of fuel.

Nazi Troop Train Crash Reported in Holland

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 17 — Aneta, Netherlands news agency, quoted a Soviet information bureau report from Moscow today that a heavily-laden German troop train collided with another train at a station near Groningen in the Northern Netherlands, causing serious damage and suspending traffic.

Five prominent Netherlanders were executed by a Nazi firing squad Saturday as hostages after saboteurs whom the Germans blamed for a similar troop train wreck Aug. 7 were not captured.

The Germans previously had said the lives of 1,600 hostages would be taken if the saboteurs were not given up by their countrymen, and there was a possibility that other executions might follow the first five.

Green Camp Seaman Is Honored at Party

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Alexander of Green Camp entertained Thursday evening for the pleasure of their son, Charles Jr., who left Friday for Toledo following his enlistment as an apprentice seaman in the U. S. Navy. Games and contests entertained the group which included 16 close friends of Charles Jr., and awards were won by Miss Virginia Martin and Mr. Alexander. A scavenger hunt completed the entertainment. The hostess was assisted in serving by Mrs. George Rosebrough of Green Camp. The table was centered with a large cake decorated with a large "V." Red, white and blue candles lighted the table and completing the decorations were flowers in these colors.

ABOUT ANYTHING ... In and Around Marion

Businessman at 12

A 12-year-old Marion boy who has been giving his dad a lift in the operation of a downtown parking lot while the father is working for the ordnance plant recently showed that he doesn't intend to let his tender years interfere with his efficiency as a business man.

It seems someone pulled into the lot and refused his demand for the customary parking fee. When his "customer" reportedly refused to pay up, the boy went into action. First he called police and then he asked another customer who had just come to get his car off the lot to block the departure of the offending driver's car. The man called upon to give this help debated for a moment whether he should involve himself in the matter, but finally decided he would talk to the driver in the boy's behalf. The arrival of a police car just then saved him the trouble. He reported the boy got his money.

Penny Saver

Don't ask French Crow, Marion attorney and former postmaster, for a penny.

For many years he has studiously avoided letting loose of pennies, saving them all for a little container at his office which is emptied periodically and deposited in a savings and loan company account.

Mr. Crow started the practice for his eldest daughter when she was a child, and by the time she was ready to go to college, enough had accumulated to pay for half her first year's expenses. The fund has since been used for other members of the family.

After several years of "not passing a penny" to anyone, the policy of saving them became almost a passion with Mr. Crow. Once when a brother visited him and had need for some pennies, he picked up 10 of them belonging to Mr. Crow and left a dime in their place. When Mr. Crow heard about the incident, he promptly demanded that the pennies be returned because he didn't want his record spoiled.

Beauty Spot

As pretty a lawn as there is in Marion or any other city around here is in front of the Marion Gospel Center building on East Center street.

Fragrant lavender and white petunias border both sides of the spacious lawn, fill bed between the sidewalk and curb, and form round beds in the center of each side of the lawn.

The faint whiff of the flowers is a delightful send-off in the morning, or a pick-up at the end of a long day.

Petunias aren't expensive, in fact they're one of the most inexpensive flowers on the market. Used with the taste shown in the East Center street planting they can be a delight to passersby.

Tent Life

Sgt. John Dunn, brother of Miss Kathryn Dunn of 302½ West Center street, lamented one of life's ironies when he went to Camp Polk, La., last February. When a youngster he was never allowed to sleep out in a tent. There were not enough barracks at Camp Polk, however, so he had to occupy a tent. "I couldn't sleep for being mad to think how I'd wanted to sleep in a tent all those years and never got to until I came to camp," he said. Sgt. Dunn was inducted in Mansfield, where Mrs. Dunn is still making her home.

Always Helpful

The dilemma of where to find a room has been solved by one of the personnel of the defense housing registration organization.

Her job is registering rooms and homes but the lady couldn't find one for herself on the list—she wanted a room in a home where meals would be served or where she could do her own cooking.

The Star classified department can take the bow—she advertised in the newspaper columns and now she's pleasantly situated.

Infant Son of Marion Couple Is Stricken

Lewis Leo White, day-old son of Lawson and Millie E. White of 303 Edwards street, died Sunday at 10 p. m. at the City hospital. Surviving are the parents, a brother, Franklin Delano, and two sisters, Dixie Lee and Joan, all at home.

The funeral will be conducted Tuesday at 1:30 p. m. at the Edwin K. Smith home for funerals on East Center street by Rev. Ernest Finkenbiner of Emmanuel Baptist church. Burial will be in Forest Glen cemetery. Friends may call at the home on Edwards street after 7 p. m. today until 10 a. m. Tuesday.

DIRIGIBLE PILOTS LISTED MISSING

Navy Finds No Trace of Men from Stray Blimp.

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17—Two veterans in operation of dirigibles were listed as missing today as the navy pursued vague clues to their mysterious disappearance from a disabled patrol blimp which fell in a suburban street.

The two, only members of the crew, were Lieut. Ernest DeWitt Cody, 27, graduate of the naval academy in 1938, rated as a skilled pilot in lighter than air craft, and Ensign Charles E. Adams, 38, whose navy career of 20 years had been almost exclusively devoted to such craft.

The wives of both men, at Mountain View, Calif. were notified they were missing. Lieut. Cody came here from Akron, O., Ensign Adams, from Lakehurst, N. J.

"Nothing like this ever happened before," a navy spokesman said as flight experts puzzled over vague clues and theories. Common practice is for men to stay with the gondola when approaching a forced landing.

The blimp had been on a routine anti-submarine patrol flight.

Two life belts were missing from the craft when it landed, but all of the parachutes and the rubber raft were found in the gondola where the two officer-crewmen rode.

The blimp with big tears visible in its fabric and with its two motors idle, drifted in from the Pacific yesterday, five hours after it had taken off on a flight.

The craft wandered along at tree top height, left one of its depth charges on the Lakeside golf course when a bomb rack scraped the ground and drew a crowd of hundreds who followed it by automobile and street car before it settled to earth in nearby Daly city.

Daly city firemen, who were burning brush in the hills, quit their fire and arrived in their fire engine just as the bag settled to earth. It struck one house and two autos, but caused little damage.

There was considerable damage to the fabric and gondola, but navy maintenance men said the ship could be put back into service.

One depth charge still in the bomb rack under the gondola offered no hazard, inasmuch as it would explode only under water at considerable depth, navel men said.

OHIO 40 ET 8 GROUPS ELECT 2 MARIONITES

Chosen for State Offices in Canton Convention.

Glenn E. Allen of 269 Superior street and Mrs. Ines Eikenbary of 1685 East Church street were chosen for offices in the Ohio Department 40 et 8 society and the Women's auxiliary at the annual meeting being held simultaneously with the state convention of the American Legion and auxiliary in Canton.

Mr. Allen, a past chef de guerre of Marion Voiture No. 48, was named grand correspondent, an office he held last year. Mrs. Eikenbary was chosen le demi chapeau premiere of the 8 et 40, Women's auxiliary. She is one of the organizers and a past head of the local auxiliary.

The Legionnaires today started considering their role in this global war after a "victory parade" that emphasized the civilian defense program, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

The parade, highlighting the opening program of the Ohio Legion's 24th annual convention, attracted an estimated 85,000 spectators.

First wartime parade the veterans have planned, it had all the color and fanfare of other years and a new marching unit—the Canton civilian defense council.

Fifty bands and 15,000 persons, including Gov. Bricker and John McSweeney, Democratic nominee for governor, participated. Bricker marched at the head of the line and McSweeney, a captain in the World war, marched with his Wooster Legion post. The rival candidates later shook hands and exchanged greetings.

Citing the Legion's sponsorship of the first statewide scrap metal collection and its civilian defense work, Department Commander Floyd Hartpence of Westerville told delegates the organization has made important contributions to the war effort.

O. R. Shryock of Akron was chosen the new chef de gare of the Ohio department, 40 et 8 society.

The 8 et 40 Women's auxiliary of the 40 et 8, made Mrs. Helen Busser of Cleveland its head, and Mrs. Hazel Slater of Lima, l'aumonier.

MINISTER NAMED IN COURT ACTION DIES

Galion Native, in Breach of Promise Suit, Stricken.

By The Associated Press

STEUBENVILLE, O., Aug. 17—A cerebral hemorrhage was fatal today to Rev. Harold C. Zeis, 43, who four years ago was ordered to pay a New York City divorcee $10,000 for breach of promise.

Mr. Zeis served at Grace Episcopal church in Sandusky and at St. Luke's church in Cleveland before becoming rector of St. Paul's church here. He was on leave from an Episcopal church in Paris, France, at the time of his death. Since leaving Europe, he has served as vice president and sales manager of the Ohio foundry here.

Testifying in Coral Lillian Burnham's $100,000 breach of promise suit, the stocky rector conceded "there is no question in the world I was in love with her. I always loved her." Miss Burnham testified Mr. Zeis told her in December, 1935, that he wanted to "be free" and "hob-nob with success," and that two months later he married the former Mrs. A. B. Sharpe, wealthy widow of an Ohio Valley Steel manufacturer. The jury of 12 middle-aged men, most of them farmers, awarded Miss Burnham $10,000.

Mr. Zeis was a native of Galion, O., and a graduate of Kenyon college. He is survived by his widow.

War Plant Patrol Covers Big Area

... and patrol go about the business with the proper willingness to cooperate.

Must Be Courteous But Alert

There's something more to police work than just the perfunctory operations that most visitors see. It's hard to describe but here's a sample. Patrolmen, among other duties, must direct traffic at danger points such as busy intersections. Chief Flowers explained that if a patrolman half-heartedly motions for certain lines of traffic to move, the line will move sluggishly. However, if the patrolman is interested in his job and puts some snap into his motions, the drivers will respond in the same manner and both the drivers and the patrolmen feel better because the job has been done right. The same thing applies to patrolmen's manner of speaking to visitors and employes. If the patrolman is alert, courteous and obviously trying to be helpful the chances are the person he is dealing with will treat him the same way and the conversation will leave both parties in good humor. The opposite of course, is true.

Chief Flowers remarking that an unnecessary nasty remark from a patrolman could "spoil most of the day" for anyone. In the same spirit that he has instructed the patrolmen to be polite, he also asks that employes and visitors treat the patrolmen properly.

All of these niceties of police work plus the constant flow of new problems that must be met led Chief Flowers to comment that "police work gets into your blood."

"It becomes a part of every man who seriously works at his job and there's something about it you don't find in any other line of work," he said.

How It's Organized

The patrol will be divided into companies with sergeants, lieutenants, captains, an inspector and the chief in charge under the direct command of the commanding officer. Some of the personnel now holding jobs above the rank of patrolmen are the following:

Inspector P. L. Wasson, college graduate, for three years with the National Tube Co. guard at Elyria and a veteran of four years' work in the state highway patrol.

Supply Sgt. R. D. Martin of Marion, in charge of the patrol's equipment and property, has had National Guard experience.

Sgt. Charles W. Hensley of the planning department, keeps mobilization plans up to date, prepares plans for handling all kinds of possible emergencies.

Desk Sgt. C. E. Gertler, nine years experience in Ohio state highway patrol office in Columbus, in charge of desk work and files.

Other sergeants or lieutenants all of whom have had either ROTC, National Guard or regular army experience, include Lieut. James C. Anderson, Lieut. C. L. Butts, who has had two years' state highway patrol experience, Lieut. D. H. Clark, in charge of the patrol school here and a former highway patrolman, and Lieut. E. P. McAfee, former night service manager for the McDaniel Motor Co.

Well Equipped

The patrol will have complete facilities including patrol cars, two-way radio communication between the headquarters and the cars, telephone connections all over the area, special equipment such as high-power repeating rifles, and at points where the men are stationed to watch entrances or exits small sentry buildings are being provided, to be equipped with telephone, lights and a small electric heater. The buildings are for the occasional use of the patrolmen and are only about four feet square.

A police school is maintained at the patrol headquarters. The men are taught the fundamentals of their work and given instruction in such things as proper use of firearms. The headquarters will have a pistol range soon. Instruction will continue indefinitely and will cover all phases of the patrol's work.

Also in the building in addition to general offices, is a big locker room where each man will be able to lock up his valuables while he is on duty. The supply rooms are so arranged that the men can check in, pick up their equipment, go to the locker room to change clothes and then be ready to report for duty. Uniforms, raincoats, galoshes, guns, maces and other equipment are kept in the supply room. Another room contains six showers and four toilets.

A big bulletin board is posted in the building to keep the men informed on the latest regulations, notices of their days off and other general information.

Men in supervisory capacities meet regularly with the chief and inspector for a discussion of problems and a question and answer session.

Direct Wire from War Zone Would Help U. S. Morale

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

Progress of the battle in the Solomon islands remains an untold story as this daring initial American offensive enters its 11th day, though an unofficial report from General MacArthur's headquarters say our marines are believed to be extending bridge-heads won in hard fighting—and that certainly sounds like the leathernecks.

Washington is giving us what it can about this historic adventure, but it would be a great thing for our country if communications and other circumstances connected with this isolated action were such that we could have the tale red-hot as it unfolds. Some of it would be hard reading, for the Jap resistance has been fierce and I believe we must be prepared to hear of considerable casualties.

Still, it would be a mighty builder of war morale in America if constant detailed dispatches from the front could move us in spirit right out among our boys on those isles.

Our trouble is that we are so far removed from the actual theaters of war that we haven't yet got the "feel" of this world conflict upon which our survival depends.

It won't be long now before we shall have actualities of the war brought home to us, too, for our forces will be increasingly engaged on many fronts. The arrival of that day will bring us sorrows, but it also will make our whole population a part of the fighting lines. That's the feeling which we need to have to get ahead with our job.

NEW UTILITY RATE PLAN ASKED IN OHIO

Cleveland Law Dept. Proposes Constitutional Change.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 17 — An amendment to the Ohio constitution requiring the Ohio public utilities commission to fix utility rates on the basis of the money a public utility has "prudently invested" for the customers' service was proposed today by Cleveland's city law department.

In a report prepared for city council, Law Director Thomas A. Burke Jr., and Assistant Director Spencer W. Reeder said the amendment could wipe out the reproduction cost method of rate making.

The report, requested by city council, grows out of a federal power commission order requiring the Hope Natural Gas Co. of West Virginia to reduce by approximately $2,815,000 a year its rate to the East Ohio Gas Co. of Cleveland. The commission's decision said investment figures "now become all important in rate regulations."

For pedestrians, bicycle riders and other persons obliged to be about in darkness a battery fed safety light to be worn on a belt has been invented.

WORK ON ROADS TO START NEXT WEEK

Release of Surfacing Material for County Authorized.

Work on the surface treatment program affecting 65.2 miles of county roads is expected to begin next week, County Engineer Walter W. Johnson announced today.

The project had been delayed pending the federal government's release of asphalt and road oil. Certification for the release of the materials, including 79,000 gallons of asphalt and 101,000 gallons of road oil, was received today.

The work is to be done by the U. S. Construction Co. of Upper Sandusky. It will consist of drag treatment and application of new hard top to 33.8 miles of highway and seal coating 31.4 miles.

Rescue attempts by citizens of Peru, augmented by soldiers, doctors, nurses, woodsmen and other volunteers were made under the most difficult conditions.

Battling darkness that made their task "like walking in an inkpot," they were aided only by the distant light of the burning plane, and by red flares and flashlights.

Hazardous Rescue

So narrow and winding were the roads stretching from the nearest main highway that only one car could pass at a time and oftentimes machines going in opposite directions were forced into small gullies by the roadside.

Ambulances, hearses, troop trucks and police cars negotiated the dangerous terrain at slow speed and sometimes guides with flashlights ran ahead to keep the roads clear.

As soon as they army regulars reached the wreckage, a strong guard was posted throughout the area and civilians not engaged in rescue work were kept almost two miles away.

Officers in charge of rescue operations said that all bodies probably would be brought out of the wilderness by midnight, but added "disposition of the wreckage has not yet been decided upon."

MAGAZINE ARTICLE ON DETROIT ATTACKED

Mayor and Labor Leader Call Charges False.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Aug. 17 — Detroit's mayor and leader of its union labor today took issue with an account of this city's performance in the war production effort published in the current issue of Life magazine.

Mayor Edward J. Jeffries and R. J. Thomas, president of the CIO United Auto Workers, contended that the five-page lead article, entitled "Detroit is Dynamite," had unjustly impugned Detroit's patriotism.

"I'll match Detroit's patriotism against that of any other city in the country," declared Jeffries last night. "Why, anyone who lives here knows we haven't had a major labor dispute, except that one on the Detroit street railways last year, in three years.

"The whole story in Life is scurrilous, with just enough half truths to impress anyone who doesn't know the facts. Life doesn't tell anything about the real miracles of machines that have been performed; nothing about Chrysler tank production, nothing about what Ford has done in making airplane engines. * * *"

Thomas, declaring "there have been a few isolated strikes in the automobile industry, but not one-tenth the number there were before Pearl Harbor."

HELD IN SHOOTING

MISS MARGARET HERLIHY

GIRL UNDER GUARD IN DEATH OF CAPTAIN

Colonel's Daughter Accused in Death of Fiance.

By The Associated Press

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Aug. 17 — Miss Margaret Herlihy, daughter of an army officer, was held under guard in the county hospital today after the fatal shooting of her fiance, Capt. D. D. Carr.

A charge of assault with a deadly weapon was filed against the girl Saturday night, a few hours before Captain Carr died of two bullet wounds suffered in a shooting at the home of Lieut. Col. E. G. Herlihy, infantry commander at Fort Huachuca.

Deputy County Attorney Norman Herring said the charge would be changed to murder, probably today.

At the county hospital, Miss Herlihy was reported in a serious hysterical condition.

Captain Carr, 27-year-old tank company officer, was shot early Saturday morning after he and Miss Herlihy returned from Agua Prieta, a resort across the Mexican border.

In a statement, Colonel Herlihy said he found marks of a beating on his daughter, adding he was "convinced she was fighting for her life," against Carr.

"Carr apparently resented the fact that we planned to take Margaret with us to Fort Benning, Ga., where I have been transferred," the colonel said. "We had always opposed this engagement but did not interfere as our daughter was over 21 years old. We thought things would work out."

The couple was to have been married Sept. 15.

Captain Carr, of Omaha, Neb., was a teacher and a newspaper reporter before he was called to active duty with the national guard Nov. 25, 1940. He was a graduate of the infantry school at Fort Benning.

Colonel Herlihy is a native of Chillicothe, O., and a graduate of Marietta (O.) college.

The United States Rubber Co. announced at its general headquarters from the navy department to build and operate a shell loading plant in North Carolina.

Mr. Brown has carried the title of general manager of the Scioto Ordnance Plant since it was announced several months ago that the U. S. Rubber Co. would operate the Scioto plant.

Mr. Brown formerly was production manager of the company's mechanical goods, general products and rubber thread divisions.

Eleven Ships Launched in Day in U. S. Yards

By The Associated Press

SOUTH PORTLAND, ME., Aug. 17—American shipyards sent 11 new ships into the water yesterday—eight in Maine, in the greatest mass launching in the nation's history—but workmen were urged to even greater efforts by Admiral Emory E. Land.

"Every hour saved in a shipyard may mean a life—yes, even a dozen lives saved in the fighting forces of the United States," the chairman of the maritime commission asserted in Maine where six freighters and two destroyers slid down the ways at three busy yards.

And in Texas, three ships were launched—a "minesweeper" and a cargo ship at the Pennsylvania yards in Beaumont, and the destroyer Murray at the Consolidated Steel Corporation, Ltd., Texas yards at Orange.

U. S. SOLDIERS BUY INSURANCE

3,500,000 Apply for Policies, Gen. Hines Tells Veterans at Cleveland.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 17 — Men in the armed forces have made out 3,500,000 applications for national service life insurance with a face value of more than $18,000,000,000 (billions), the United Spanish war veterans were told today by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs.

"That is a gigantic sum, of which we may well be proud," he said in an address prepared for the veterans' 44th national encampment.

"It shows conclusively that our boys realize the seriousness of this war—and that they are not forgetting the folks back home. It is typical of the American soldier and sailor to think more of their families than of their own pocket money—and I honor them for it."

He emphasized that the number of applications for the government-provided insurance does not represent "the number of service men involved," because "it has been made optional with the individual," who could refrain from applying, or take out any amount from $1,000 to $10,000, or take out a second or third policy so long as the total did not exceed $10,000.

"Only a few hundred thousand men applied for insurance before the infamous Japanese attack," said General Hines, but since Pearl Harbor many new applications and many applications for additional coverage have been received.

Payments on "policies which have been matured by death in the service" so far "have been considerable," he related. "A good many of these awards resulted from the automatic insurance which congress provided retroactively after Pearl Harbor, for the protection of dependents of men who lost their lives before the declaration of war, but who failed to purchase insurance policies up to $5,000."

ALLEN IS CASUALTY OF RAID ON AXIS

AP Reporter Falls Down Hatch in Blackout.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 17—Larry Allen, Associated Press correspondent with the British fleet in the Mediterranean, whose story of the naval bombardment of the Italian Dodecanese Islands appeared in newspapers Saturday, was the only casualty of the attack.

Allen, 1941 Pulitzer prize winner for distinguished reporting in the war zone, said at the end of his account of the attack:

"Enroute back to port there were several reports that enemy aircraft were about, but they failed to catch up with the bombarding fleet...the only casualty of this shelling was myself. I stepped into an open hatchway in a blackout and fell five feet before catching a handgrip on steel railing. I wound up with a badly sprained ankle, bruises and contusions."

DOOLITTLE'S VISIT TO LONDON REVEALED

Tokyo Bomber Confers with U. S. Air Commanders.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 17—The presence here of Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle, who led United States army air force bombers in the attack on Japan last April 18, was disclosed for publication today.

He has been here 10 days, and is expected to return to the United States soon.

Doolittle, it was indicated authoritatively, will not be attached permanently to the American air command in the European theater.

This was his second special wartime mission to Britain. He came here in 1941, before the United States entered the war, as a member of a mission headed by Lieut. Gen. George Brett, now Gen. Douglas MacArthur's air chief in the southwest Pacific.

Doolittle's arrival was a tightly guarded secret until after he had conferred with Maj. Gen. Carl Spaatz, commander in chief of the United States air forces in the European theater, and his second in command, Brig. Gen. Ira C. Eaker.

He also made a three-day tour of American air bases in Britain.

Indians, Brownies Split Double Bill; St. Louis Defeat Cincinnati Twice

SPORTS — THE MARION STAR

SPURNS DODGER OFFER

By The Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS—Dick Durrell, 17-year-old first baseman for the Richfield American Legion team, has turned down a Brooklyn Dodger contract to enter college this fall. Durrell, voted the most valuable player on his team, has a batting average of .363 for that period.

Al Javery Hurls Boston Braves to 2-0 Shutout Over Dodgers in Seven-Inning Game.

By The Associated Press

IT WAS bound to happen some time.

It came as the Indians sank into one of their worst batting slumps of the season. That was enough to disturb Manager Lou Boudreau, but then he got the first booing of his career from the Cleveland fans—for removing a pitcher.

Lou knew how to reply. With two men out in the 11th inning of yesterday's opening game, the boy manager drove in the winning run for a 3 to 2 victory over the St. Louis Browns. The Tribe then dropped the nightcap, 6 to 1.

By dividing the twin bill, the Indians remained in third place with a lead of two and a half games over the Browns as they prepared to go into tonight's finale. Mel Harder will be seeking his 10th victory against Johnny Niggeling.

Boudreau got the Bronx when he took out Cowboy Dean in the ninth inning of the opener. The Tribe was leading 2 to 0, two men were out and two Brownies were on bases as Harry Eisenstat took over. He pitched to only two batters, but their singles knotted the score. Tom Ferrick finished, holding the Browns hitless in the remaining two and one-third innings to get the credit for the victory.

With one out in the second extra-inning, Jeff Heath and Les Fleming singled, Heath going to third. Taking one ball, Boudreau then sent a long fly to center and Heath scored after the catch.

The Tribe got its two other runs in the fourth, bunching three hits off Eldon Auker with a squeeze bunt.

After what happened to their pitchers in last month's all-star game, the National league master minds should be giving themselves a good mental kicking around every time they read Al Javery's name in a box score these days.

The Boston Braves' string bean currently is about the hottest pitcher in either league, fast living up to Manager Casey Stengel's spring prediction that he would be recognized as one of the game's great hurlers before the season ended. On his present form, Al would have been a real ornament to the Nationals' all-star line-up.

When he blanked the Dodgers 2 to 0 in seven innings yesterday, Javery completed his 19th consecutive inning without having allowed a run.

The Dodgers' setback, in conjunction with the St. Louis Cardinals' double victory over Cincinnati, 10-5 and 6-3, put the Cards back within eight games of the top today.

The Chicago Cubs, behind tight pitching by Bill Lee and Les Fleming, defeated Pittsburgh, 5-1 and 4-1.

Mel Ott's Giants tightened their hold on third place by trimming the Phils, 6-5.

The Boston Red Sox took a firmer grip on second place in the American league as they swept their double-header with Washington, 6-4 and 10-3. They held a three-game lead over Cleveland today.

Home runs by Joe DiMaggio and Joe Gordon paced the Yanks to an 11-2 victory over the Athletics in a six-inning affair at Shibe park.

Detroit came from behind twice to win two decisions over the Chicago White Sox, 3-2 and 7-3, the first game going 11 innings.

Cleveland and the St. Louis Browns battled to a stand-off, the Indians winning the first game, 3-2, in 11 innings and the Browns taking the second, 6-1.

1,000,000 Shells Will Blast at Old Jinx

Wide World Features

VANDALIA, O.—Colorful characters galore will flood this Miami village Aug. 24 to 28 as the 43rd annual grand American trapshoot—a million shotgun shell barrage—is staged by a thousand or more of the nation's clay target marksmen.

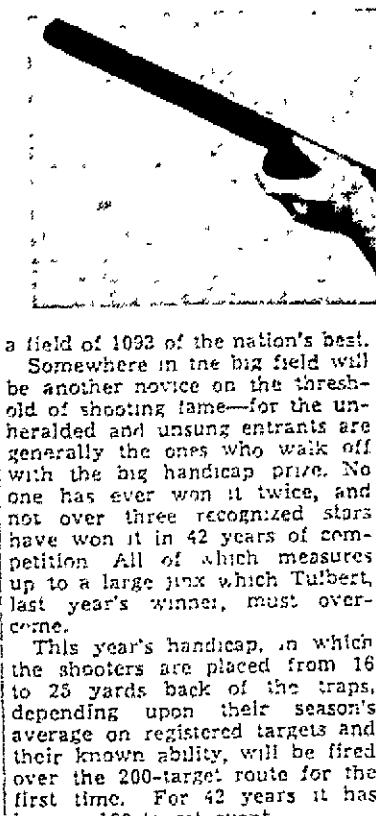
Although many of the scatter-gun artists are in the armed services, practically all the old-timers will grace the firing line.

Among them will be Mark Arie, the veteran from Champaign, Ill., who has won more than $100,000 in cash and silver with a $40 second-hand gun he bought some 25 years ago; Charley Young of Springfield, O., who at 70 years of age, won the Grand American Handicap—top prize of them all—with 100 straight from 23 yards in 1926; Forest McNeir of Houston, Tex., the only living recipient of the Carnegie gold medal for heroism; Mrs. Lela Hall, the comely housewife from Strasburg, Mo., rated the greatest amateur woman trapshooter in history; Joe Hiestand, the Hillsboro, O., farm boy who has won everything in the book except the "roaring grand," and who holds the world's long run record of 1179 at 16 yards; and Walter Tulbert, the 53-year-old Detroiter who, with only a month of trapshooting experience behind him, used a second-hand gun a year ago to win the big handicap from a field of 1092 of the nation's best.

Somewhere in the big field will be another novice on the threshold of shooting fame—for the unheralded and unsung entrants are generally the ones who walk off with the big handicap prize. No one has ever won it twice, and not over three recognized stars have won it in 42 years of competition. All of which measures up to a large jinx which Tulbert, last year's winner, must overcome.

This year's handicap, in which the shooters are placed from 16 to 25 yards back of the traps, depending upon their season's average on registered targets and their known ability, will be fired over the 200-target route for the first time. For 42 years it has been a 100-target event.

The longer route may upset to some extent the tradition that only the lesser known marksmen can win, for talent may triumph at last. The winners have hit the heights because of a "hot day" and a short handicap distance, but the "hot stretch" may not extend over the two days which will be consumed on this year's classic event. The hot-shots are expected to hold close to their averages for the two days, and if they do they'll beat out the novices having a hot day and a cold one.



Walter Tulbert.. history says he can't repeat in Grand American.

Will Salvage Lead

More than 40 tons of leaden pellets will be fired from the blazing shotguns during the five days of championship races, but only three or four per cent of them will be lost. Mining operations in front of the quarter-mile trap line recover practically all the metal. The brass from the shells, too, is saved 100 per cent, so nothing which would aid the war effort is lost in the big barrage. The powder used in the shells is not the type used in war weapons.

Last year's entry list boasted residents of every state in the Union, all of Canada's provinces, Mexico, Cuba and the Canal Zone. The war and attendant transportation difficulties are expected to cut the entry to some extent this season, but amateur trapshooting association officials predict a field of at least 1,000.

Approximately 1,000,000 shells will be fired, and more than $50,000 in cash prizes will be awarded during the program. To fire in each event, and to play the "optionals" in each, would cost a shooter about $275 for the week.

MANSFIELD WOMAN HOLDS GOLF TITLE

Sparkplug Co. Employe Wins Men's Public Links Crown.

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., Aug 17 — Mrs. P. J. (Thelma) Linster of Mansfield held Ohio's feminine public links crown for the third straight year today, while Val Chiaverini of Toledo, 28-year-old sparkplug plant employe, was on the men's throne.

The two stars won yesterday in the 13th annual tournament, slashed to 36 holes and a single day of play because of the war. A field of 151 fired for the men's trophy, while 19 played in the women's sector.

Chiaverini tacked together rounds of 73 and 73 for the 146 total which gave him a three-stroke edge over his nearest foe, Jimmy Meier of Toledo, and four ahead of third-place W. Pacer, also of the Maumee city.

Mrs. Linster, after an 83 on the opening round, romped around in 80 on the finals for a 163 total, seven strokes under Mrs. Helen Callahan of Youngstown. Mrs. Emma Wolf of Youngstown was third with 171.

All the women finished the 36 holes, but 60 of the 161 men failed to go the full route.

War bonds and stamps made up the prize list, and the 1943 tournament was tentatively awarded to Dayton.

Men's scores included: J. Mayer, Mansfield, 153; Al Hager, Mansfield, and G. D. Moes, Lima, 155; Ed Roslkowski, Steubenville, 156; T. Foster, Lima 157; Ed Franklin, Springfield, 158; Al Kushin, Mansfield, 160; A. Kliner, Steubenville, 164; H. A. Kjellman, Steubenville, 165; R. J. Casey, Lima, 166, and P. J. Linster, Mansfield, 167.

STATUS OF DAYTON'S BOSS IS UNCERTAIN

Suspension Will Be Lifted, Holmes Says.

By The Associated Press

DAYTON, O., Aug. 17 — The precise status of Manager Howard (Ducky) Holmes of the Dayton Ducks became a deep riddle today.

Ducky said that a suspension President Elmer Daily of the Mid-Atlantic league imposed on him would last no more than three days.

Daily said he wasn't so sure.

Chronologically, this was the picture:

Ducky had words with Umpire Bob Crouch during a game at Canton Friday night. Crouch told the manager to get off the field. Ducky refused, so the umpire forfeited the game to Canton 9 to 0 and fined Holmes $50.

Late Saturday Daily informed Holmes he was suspended for the rest of the season—Dayton has about 30 games to play — and fined Ducky $150.

Yesterday Holmes said, "Sure, I've been suspended, but it won't last long." A few hours later he said the suspension had been cut to three days.

But Daily, speaking from his Ebenburg, Pa., home, remarked: "Holmes may be suspended three days or 33 days. I am leaving that up to my judgment. If Holmes' attitude is proper, I may lift the suspension any time."

Meanwhile, Catcher Paul Chervinko was managing the Ducks—and they lost yesterday, Charleston winning 5 to 2.

Canton and Zanesville played two 11-inning games, and Canton won them both, 11-6 and 4-3. Erie edged Springfield 2 to 1.

Birdie Tebbetts already is on his way to the army and the word is that young Harvey Riebe, just bought from Beaumont, may be called any day.

PARTY FIGHT NEAR CLIMAX

Showdown Between Roosevelt and Farley Likely To Come Tomorrow.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 17 — First indications of a showdown in the struggle for New York's Democratic gubernatorial nomination, with President Roosevelt and State Chairman James A. Farley backing opposing candidates, may come at a conference of party leaders tomorrow.

Farley, who is backing Attorney General John J. Bennett Jr., against U. S. Senator James M. Mead, endorsed by President Roosevelt, claims that more than a majority of the 1,104 delegates to the state convention, which opens in Brooklyn Wednesday, are pledged to Bennett.

Politicians see in the contest an apparent struggle between President Roosevelt to control the home state choice and possibly the delegation to the 1944 Democratic national convention, and Farley's effort to hold control of the Democratic state organization.

Conference Important

Immediate attention was focused on the convention-eve conference, called by Farley, because for the past 20 years the Democratic nominee for Governor has been largely determined at such conferences.

Further complication of the party split occurred when the American Labor party announced a decision to place a separate ticket in the election in the event Bennett is nominated.

Terence McManus, Mead's campaign manager, and Maurice F. Davidson, of the state power authority, said a Republican candidate surely would win if the ALP entered a ticket in the general election. Thomas E. Dewey, former New York district attorney, is considered the likely G.O.P. choice.

McManus said "it would be suicidal" if the delegates did not insist that their district leaders release them from any commitments they may have made to Bennett prior to Mead's entry as a candidate.

Won for Lehman

The ALP, which gave Governor Lehman his margin of victory in the last gubernatorial election, has indorsed Mead. ALP leaders said if their party entered a ticket it would nominate New York City Controller Joseph D. McGoldrick, an independent Democrat, for governor.

Both Mead and Bennett are scheduled to address the 79th annual convention of the New York State Federation of Labor in Rochester, N. Y., today. The organization, which claims a membership of 1,500,000, heard its president, Thomas J. Lyons, yesterday repudiate "any attempt by the American Labor party or any other political organization to speak for organized labor in this state."

RATIONING OF MEAT IN U. S. PREDICTED

Some Plan of Equitable Distribution Needed, Dealers Told.

CHICAGO, Aug. 17—America may have to ration meat, Roy F. Hendrickson, administrator of the agricultural marketing administration, told retail meat dealers today.

"We need some system," Hendrickson said,—perhaps rationing, meatless days, a combination of the two or something else to assure equitable distribution of what will be a short supply of meat."

Estimating there would be a 1942-43 shortage of three billion pounds of meat in relation to the quantity of meat civilian consumers would buy at ceiling prices, Hendrickson said that "the current shortage of meat is only a forerunner of things to come—and the sooner that is realized the better."

Hendrickson, in discussing possible rationing of meat, pointed out that certain persons were "rationed out" of meat during the World war by letting meat prices rise. The administration now, he said, was committed to a system of ceiling prices, and "all those who have studied the subject know there is an inevitable association of price ceilings and rationing."

He spoke at the convention of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers.

Earlier President George A. Eastwood of Armour and Co. attributed the nation's "so-called meat shortage" to heavy consumer buying resulting from high wages, employment and national income.

and Jask Ruggles, 27, the co-pilot, San Francisco, Calif.

Among the British conferees were General Sir Alan Francis Brooke, chief of the imperial general staff, who flew with Churchill to the United States in the spring, and Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur William Tedder, commander-in-chief of the RAF in the Middle East.

Also, Sir Alexander Cadogan, permanent British undersecretary of state for foreign affairs and Churchill's physician, Sir Charles Wilson.

Loy Henderson, assistant chief of European affairs in the state department, was in the American group.

The visit was climaxed with a state dinner at the Kremlin on Friday night. Persons who attended it said both the British prime minister and Stalin were in the highest of spirits.

One source close to Churchill called the meeting "an epoch."

The four days of dramatic negotiations, from Wednesday until Saturday, brought the two war leaders, Churchill and Stalin, together for the first time.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of England last winter paid a visit to the Soviet Union, and Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov repaid the visit in May, when he signed the British-Soviet alliance on May 26.

Subsequently Molotov journeyed to Washington, where he saw President Roosevelt, and after he had returned to his homeland simultaneous announcements in London and Washington disclosed that the alliance had been signed and that leaders of Britain, Russia and the United States were in agreement on the urgency of establishing a second front against Adolf Hitler in 1942.

UNION CHURCH SERVICE HELD

Rev. Holloway Speaks; Program Given by Young People.

Rev. J. S. Holloway of Trinity Baptist church spoke on "God's Reserve" at the union church service at Salem Evangelical and Reformed church Sunday night.

He took his text from the nineteenth chapter of First Kings, comparing the 7,000 Israelites who had not worshiped King Ahab's gods to all persons today who have not lost faith in Christ's teachings.

Rev. Holloway said: "In his contest on Mt. Carmel with the prophets of Baal the prophet Elijah scored a signal victory only to be disillusioned and driven into temporary exile by the threat of execution at the hands of wicked Queen Jezebel. Fatigued and discouraged, Elijah rested under a Juniper tree and wished that the Lord might take him and relieve him of further responsibility for setting the world right. But that was not God's plan for his life. After being refreshed with sleep and food for his body, the Lord appeared to him in a still small voice and reassured him that there was yet a great work for him to do and there were seven thousand people in Israel who had not bowed their knees to Baal.

"When God's people today become discouraged and feel they are fighting the battle of righteousness alone in a world that is filled with blatant atheism, godless communism and pagan materialism they need to listen, as did Elijah of old, for the clear, plain voice of duty calling us back to our God given tasks of exalting Christ and working for the advancement of His kingdom in the world, remembering that God has reserved a host of true and faithful followers around the world who have not bowed their knees to the pagan gods of today."

Rev. E. H. Wierth of First Evangelical and Reformed church read the Scripture and Dr. S. M. Ingmire of Epworth Methodist offered prayer. Rev. H. C. Ahrens, pastor of the church, presided. The church choir, under the direction of Miss Edema Koenig, offered an anthem accompanied by Miss Helen Eibling at the organ.

Young people of First Evangelical and Reformed church had charge of the Christian Young People's union service at 7. The topic, "Healing the Wounds of the World" was in charge of Miss Doris Heiser. Sub-topics were handled by Miss Naomi Mitchell, John Hayman, Miss Marian Uncapher and Miss Ruth Heiser. Richard Howard, president of C. Y. P. U., talked on his two weeks at Camp Indianola in Hocking county, annual retreat for Christian youth sponsored by the Ohio Council of Churches.

Announcement was made of a skating party to be held at Crystal Lake tomorrow night. Young people are to meet at Epworth Methodist church at 7:30 to go to the lake in a group. Practice for the play which will be given Aug. 30 at Trinity Baptist church will also be held tomorrow night at Trinity Baptist church. It was announced offering from the play will go to the Marion canteen. A picnic will be held by the entire group Sept. 8, the place to be announced later.

The 29-year-old former Buffalo, N. Y., resident faces a maximum penalty of electrocution if convicted of the charge of conspiracy to commit espionage.

Bahr was arrested aboard the diplomatic exchange liner Drottningholm, in the guise of a refugee, at Jersey City July 8. The indictment charges that he conspired with eight men in Germany, Switzerland, Spain, Sweden, Turkey and Brazil to forward to Germany information vital to the American war effort. He pleaded innocent July 22.

Final service of this year's Evangelistic Bible conference sponsored by the Young People's Fellowship club of Marion was held at Chautauqua pavilion, Garfield park, Sunday night. Rev. Russell Ward of the America Back to God group of Detroit spoke on "The Great Sacrifice," saying "Christ was not ashamed to bear mockings, scourgings and the cross for mankind. Why do we hesitate to own Him as Savior and Lord?"

Vocal numbers were given and hymns with variations in his own arrangement were played by Mr. Bergerson on the piano. Rev. Ward spoke on "As It Was in the Days of Noah," a message on "the signs of our times" at the afternoon service.

Other speakers at the two-weeks' conference were Dr. T. R. Dunham, Bible teacher, of Findlay, who spoke on the prophecies; Miss Anne E. Thomas of Richmond, Va., recently returned from Central America where she was engaged in missionary work for 23 years in Honduras, Costa Rica and Nicaragua; Miss Eunice Stowell, recently returned from the pioneer mission field of French Equatorial Africa, and George Abrams of Alabama, graduate of Bob Jones college, field worker for the Young People's Fellowship clubs of Ohio, Indiana and Michigan.

MARKET TONE BETTER TODAY

Bullish Forces Keep Control Over List as Quotations Advance Fractions.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 17 — Bullish forces retained control of the stock market today as selected rails and industrials advanced fractions to a point or more, a number to new highs for the year or longer.

Investment demand, combined with the apparent scarcity of some stocks, brokers said, was the principal sustaining trend influence.

Carrier loans turned up in the bond department. Staples were uneven.

Favored stocks included Santa Fe which touched a new top since 1938. Peaks for 1942 were reached by Atlantic Coast Line, Hiram Walker, U. S. Rubber common and preferred, Socony-Vacuum, United Air Lines, Pan-American Airways, Lehigh Valley Coal preferred, and National Dairy. In front were American Telephone, Sears Roebuck, Westinghouse and Eastman Kodak. Steels, utilities and motors were listless. Douglas Aircraft, Liggett & Myers "B," and Homestake Mining softened.

Supported in the curb were Aluminum of America, Gulf Oil, American Light and Tampa Electric. Lagging tendencies were exhibited by Fire Association of Philadelphia, Pennroad and Sherwin Williams.

NAZI PATROL BOAT SUNK IN CHANNEL

Light British Naval Forces Engage Enemy In Battle.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 17—A light German patrol boat was sunk and three others were severely damaged in a spirited clash with British light coastal craft in the straits of Dover last night, the admiralty announced today.

All the British craft engaged in the clash returned to their base, but there were a few casualties aboard, the admiralty said.

The German force consisted of "five or six enemy R-boats," the communique said.

The British set one afire and saw it sink. The German commanding officer was killed and 15 German sailors were picked up by the British.

ALLIED SHIP LOSSES LOWEST IN 16 WEEKS

Toll for Last Week Reported at Seven.

By The Associated Press

Last week's announced ship losses were the lowest in 16 weeks. Only seven allied merchantmen fell prey to enemy submarines and none of these was in the U. S. east coast and Caribbean convoy lanes.

With only two sinkings in the Gulf of Mexico and five off South America, an The Associated Press count of announced wartime merchant victims in the western Atlantic rose to 426, indications were that the undersea raiders were shifting southward away from the supply lines now guarded by naval vessels and aircraft.

Fifty-six seamen were killed and 134 others rescued in the sinkings announced last week which included two British craft, two Dutch, two Cuban and one Norwegian.

Since Pearl Harbor, 171, allied or neutral merchantmen have been announced sunk in eastern U. S. waters, 41, off Canada, 130 in the Caribbean, 43 in the Gulf of Mexico and 72 off South America.

RENEWED SELLING HURTS GRAIN PRICES

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 17—Renewed selling tumbled corn prices more than a cent a bushel today to new lows for the season and other grains weakened sympathetically although losses were smaller.

Liquidation of contracts calling for September delivery of corn, of which there are more outstanding than for any other contract in the futures market, accounted for much of the selling.

Corn prices at the lows were about 7 cents under quotations late in July.

Liquor Permit Holder Sues To Keep License

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 17—One Columbus liquor permit holder sued in supreme court today to prevent the state liquor board from considering an army demand that the permit be withdrawn.

Minnie Chipoff maintained in seeking a writ of prohibition that the state liquor board gave her only 6½ days notice instead of the required 10 for a hearing Thursday. Judge Charles B. Zimmerman will consider her suit tomorrow.

She was one of 21 permit holders cited to appear to show cause why their permits should not be cancelled on the army's complaint that operations of the establishments were offensive to the army.

A total of 68 permit holders have been cited in the Columbus area on recommendation of the local war emergency civil authorities committee as a result of a cleanup drive instigated by Lt. Col. O. M. Baldinger of the Lockbourne airbase.

as well as a swifter army financial department.

But the prettiest of all excuses was advanced by Senator Thomas, Democrat, of Utah (he is not up for re-election this year), who blocked the Rankin correction in the senate Thursday, because, he said, it was dishonest to hold out hopes to dependents that they might be paid before Nov. 1, because it could not be done.

Apparently he wanted a humane argument to support his inhumane position, but he even strained his own credulity with that one, for a few minutes later he told Senator Tydings, the Nov. 1 date had been adopted for all payments because they did not want the checks which would be ready before that date to go out until all were ready.

That put him on both sides of the argument—that checks both would and could not be prepared before Nov. 1—within the span of a single long breath. Also he was apparently unaware of the Forrestal navy letter, read earlier that same day in the house, saying the navy wanted the restriction removed.

This Week in the Sky

(Prepared especially for this page by the Hayden Planetarium of the American Museum of Natural History in New York City.)

* * *

THIS WEEK the moon is due to enter its first quarter and approach the earth, coming closest to it (226,700 miles) on the 23rd, Sunday evening.

The evening sky yields no planets this week, though Venus, Jupiter, and Saturn are in a fine position in the morning sky. The absence of planets is a boon to constellation seekers who, armed with field books or sky maps, may improve the opportunity to seek out faint and not too well known summer constellations.

The great figure of Pegasus is brilliant in the east and will be up and [illegible] horizon shortly after sunset. In the south two bright constellations Scorpio and Sagittarius are especially clear, the latter particularly interesting because of its startling resemblance to a teapot.

FAREWELL

When you have a son of your own some day, as I hope you shall, you will know what I mean. I hope your going to the army will be more successful in freeing your sons from the scourge of war than was mine for you.

I am giving you two of my treasured keepsakes. Both went with me into the army 25 years ago.

One is a khaki-covered textbook on military methods and soldiery. Peruse its pages and endeavor to master the art of being a good soldier. It may not bring you promotions and high honors for there are in the army, after all, many more men than anything else. But it will bring to you the satisfaction of doing well whatever you do. It will help you learn more quickly what is expected of a good soldier.

The other, also khaki-covered, is a Bible. Don't feel that to take it is being sissy. There will no doubt be times when just to hold it in your hand will bring a mysterious comfort. I confess that I read it but little while I was in uniform. Yet there were times when its nearness—the knowledge that it had stood the test of all time and countless other wars—seemed to sort of satisfy my longing for you and Mom—lull my homesickness for all the peaceful ways of life that had been disrupted by war.

Take them, Bill, and use them. Make the most of the army and come back a better man than when you left. There is, you know, a personal as well as a national victory to be won.

It seems a bit silly, doesn't it, to send you away with a gun in one hand and a Bible in the other? The gun to kill. The Bible: "Thou Shalt Not." There is no explanation except that the gun appears for the present to be necessary for our national security. The Bible has ever been our hope of eternal security.

Learn to use the gun, Bill, but rely, finally, upon the Bible.

So long, Bill.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

"YOU know, as I do," I went on, while Ronald listened avidly, "that Carolyn has been so carefully guarded in Westhampton since Uncle Ducky took her back, that no stranger has spoken to her, telephoned her, written her, or sent her any message."

"They tried to send her messages, didn't they?" he asked, although he well knew the answer.

"Yes, twice, but both were intercepted," I replied. "Carolyn never received them, but we weren't able to learn who sent them because of our very thorough precautions against her receiving any messages.

"If she came down here," I said, "we might pretend to relax the precautions, although she really would be more closely guarded than ever. Even so, there is a chance that we would be better able to get a line on her trailers."

Agrees There's a Chance

To gain time I took up the letter and made a pretext of reading it again, then laid it down and met Ronald's anxious eyes.

"Dear boy," I said, measuring my words, "I do not want to give you false hopes, but there is a chance that Carolyn has finally come to her senses and will tell us whatever she knows about this awful thing."

The bitter sound that came from Ronald's lips was like the groan of a man in torment.

"If only I could be sure that she has no guilty knowledge," he said. Then he rose, took the letter, read it through again and handed it back.

"If you want to show this to your father, it's all right," he said. "Do you really think he then may permit Carol to come down here?"

"I cannot tell," I parried, "but I think it very likely."

Ronald's Suggestion

"I don't want to be officious," he said hesitantly, "but I believe there is one person who could get Carol to talk."

"And that person?" I asked.

"Is Marion's mother," he answered. "Carol always has adored her, and if Mrs. Underwood isn't too bitter against Carol to talk to her, she'd have a better chance to gain her confidence than anyone else."

"I think that's a good suggestion," I told him promptly, "and you may be assured that Mrs. Underwood is not bitter against Carol. I'll take all these things up with my father. When you go back, please ask him to come over here as soon as he can."

"I'll give him your message," he assured me. "And thank you so much, Aunt Madge."

He bent and kissed me, then left, a bit cheered I fancied, but his figure was bowed with anxiety.

Spencer Reads Letter

There was fierce anger in my heart against Carolyn because of her brother's suffering as I waited for my father's coming. Then I thought perhaps I was doing the girl an injustice, as we had no concrete proof of her complicity in Marion's disappearance. By the time my father knocked upon the door I was in a more tolerant frame of mind.

"Ronald said you wished to see me," he said, as he came in and I handed him Carolyn's letter, saying "Ronald is willing that you read this, and I thought there ought not to be any delay in your seeing it. Please sit down."

He took a chair, read the letter carefully, then looked at me.

"What do you suggest, Margaret?" he asked.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

To Alleviate Pains

ONE DAY ABOUT 15 years ago a New York doctor named Adolphe Monnelesser was traveling in Cuba and he somehow met and got to talking with a leper who had a very painful form of neuralgia until he was stung by a semi-poisonous tropical spider. Then his pain left him.

Dr. Monnelesser got to thinking and studying and he found that the venom of most poisonous "varmints" has an element in it which paralyzes the peripheral nerves—it is called the "neurotoxin." He took the idea to Dr. Calmette, of Paris, who, after experiments, selected cobra venom and was able to isolate the neurotoxin element in practically pure form, and on using it on patients with painful afflictions, he found that it stopped the pain in a large number of cases.

Now cobra venom is procurable at your corner drug store, put up in sterile ampoules ready to use. I know a woman who was miserable with arthritis for years who takes cobra venom regularly three times a week, and while it has not changed the stiffness of the joints, it has made life comfortable and bearable for her.

It may take a good deal of courage on the part of your doctor to tell you he intends to shoot cobra venom into you and it may startle and frighten you at first. But as a matter of experience, there are few disagreeable reactions.

In most cases it produces no symptoms whatever except that in a few days your pain gets better. And it has great advantages over other pain killers such as aspirin and morphine, which sometimes have to be used but which require larger and larger doses to be effective and cause disagreeable side effects, such as constipation and nausea. Cobra venom can be used in any case of prolonged, intractable pain.

Another accidental observation led to the employment of another venom—bee venom. Some doctor with one of those minds that keeps relating up unrelated things found that bee keepers never got arthritis; and they were always being stung by bees. So he put these together and the result is we have the bee venom treatment for arthritis. Again, it is only a pain killer—it does not change the bony deposits in the joints. But relief from pain is about the most important thing the arthritis patient craves.

You can also get bee venom at the corner drug store. The dosage is ten bee stings. I don't know how big the bees are that make up the ten stings, nor how much venom they throw in per sting. But there you are.

The problem of the patient with severe regular pain is one which troubles physicians constantly. No one likes to prescribe the sovereign pain killer, morphine, except for a single or at most three or four doses. Aspirin helps some cases if given in large quantities.

I have a friend who last year had a pain around one rib that nearly drove him crazy all summer and no cause for it could ever be found. Bee venom finally fixed him up.

There are other methods of treating pain if cobra and bee venom fail—one is the use of vitamin B, and liver extract is the vein, another the exposure of the region of the spinal ganglia to X-ray.

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, Aug. 18

THE LUNAR transits for this day emphasize the prospect of attaining the high and happy goals of fulfilled ambitions and aspirations in both the business, cultural and private life. It is a time for concentrating the energies and prerogatives toward this end, with the thrill of attained hopes and wishes to be banked upon. Finances, credit, enhanced position in the good graces of those in high places, may flourish with personal popularity counting for much of an expansive, generous nature.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which the most cherished goals of fulfilled hopes and wishes may swing wide to bring a combination of progress, achievement, expansion, growth and personal prestige and popularity. The social and friendly element may figure in reaching the desired objectives, with those in high places cooperative but with some public or group collaboration withheld. Business, credits, domestic funds should increase and give pleasure. And the social, romantic and convivial enjoyments of life may be accelerated.

A child born on this day should have much creative ability, versatility and ambition. It should have a successful, honored and happy life.

Shoe Store Manager Knew What To Do!

By The Associated Press

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Aug. 15 — Out of the dollar day shopping crowd around the shoe counter limped two women, each holding one shoe—mates.

Neither would give up her share of the bargain, and both sat down to wait.

Four hours later the women were still sitting, glaring. So the manager took the shoes off sale and replaced the regular price tag.
